

Cease-Fire Goes Into Effect In Middle East War

Troops Remain Where They Are

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The United Nations cease-fire ending the 17-day Middle East war officially went into effect between Israel and Egypt today at 12:50 p.m. EDT. Both sides had agreed in advance to stop fighting where they stood under pressure from the United States and Russia.

There was no immediate word that the fighting had actually stopped.

Syria, the main combatant on Israel's northern front, was silent. Iraq, with 18,000 troops helping the Syrians in the north, rejected the cease-fire.

The cease-fire deadline set by the United Nations was 6:50 p.m. (12:50 p.m. EDT), 12 hours after the Security Council in New York passed the joint resolution sponsored by the United States and Russia calling for an in-place truce and peace negotiations.

The cease-fire left Egyptian troops on the east bank of the Suez canal. The Israelis said the Egyptian penetration was three to five miles deep but the Egyptians said it was up to nine miles.

However, Israel succeeded in driving a wedge across the canal into Egypt which it said was 475 square miles and within 45 miles of Cairo. The Egyptians said it was much smaller.

The Israelis claimed they beat off Egyptian counterattacks in the final hours before the cease-fire. They also said they pushed the Syrians off their last outpost on Mount Hermon in the north in hand to hand fighting.

Diplomatic sources in London said that the United States and Russia agreed not to renew their arms lifts to the combatants and told Israel and the Arabs respectively they would receive no new major arms shipments if they chose to go on fighting. The sources said neither side could apparently face such an eventuality.

The Israeli announcement of acceptance, with conditions, came after a cabinet meeting that heard the latest results of the fighting. U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew from talks in Moscow with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to Tel Aviv to confer with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir on the situation. His apparent aim

Synanon's Building Plans Under Attack

Synanon's application to put new buildings on its Tomales Bay property should be denied, the staff of the North Central Coast Regional Commission said today.

The prefabricated metal buildings "would add an undesirable urbanizing effect to this predominantly rural area," the staff said in a recommendation mailed to commissioners.

The application by the organization, which rehabilitates drug addicts, alcoholics and delinquents, will be heard by the commission at 7 p.m. on Nov. 1 in San Rafael City Hall. The matter is scheduled tentatively at 9 p.m.

The 62-acre site, about three miles south of Marshall, is one of three parcels owned by Synanon in West Marin. Controversy has grown over the population of more than 400 persons at the other two facilities, but they are outside the commission's jurisdiction.

The eight buildings, already approved by the county's planning commission, include seven single-family dwellings and a storage shed. Averaging 2,200 square feet, five of the buildings would be put "on exposed, grassy slopes on or adjacent to highly visible ridgelines," the staff objected.

Its memo also objected Synanon's 1966 master plan for the site apparently was out of date with the county's new master plan and even Synanon's plans.

A revised plan, "indicating the applicant's present and future objectives for the site, is necessary for proper planning," it said.

The staff suggested Synanon reapply for the buildings "paying particular attention to the siting and screening of any proposed structures."

The site above the bay now houses about 150 persons and has more than 20 separate buildings. Almost half of the site is used for buildings, roads, parking areas and associated uses, according to the commission's staff.

RUGGED TERRAIN — A county pickup truck and rescuers advance along a fire trail in the vicinity of Kent Lake, seeking scouts lost in the windswept, fog shrouded hills. Their efforts were rewarded shortly before noon today.

Eight Lost Scouts Found On Mountain By Rescuers

Rescuers today reached eight East Bay scouts, missing in heavy rain and fog, since they left Saturday morning on a short hike from the Meadow Club above Fairfax.

A sheriff's department spokesman said the eight were all "in good shape."

The boys, who range in age from 11 to 15 years, were equipped with tents and sleeping bags and had enough food for four meals when they got lost.

Last night they responded to calls from a county fire department bull horn with flashlight signals but they were not found by rescuers until shortly before noon today.

They were being brought down from the mountain area by a team of rescuers.

The scouts, members of Troop 109 from El Cerrito, left the Meadow Club about 10:30 a.m. Saturday on a compass test expedition. They were supposed to reach Tamarancho, the scout camp west of Fairfax, about 3 to 4 p.m.

Another group of older scouts made the hike unevenly and reached the camp at about 3 p.m.

The Meadow Club and Tamarancho are fairly close as the crow flies, but fire trails and paths are numerous and confusing according to Capt. Harvey Teague of the Marin Sheriff's Department, coordinator of the search.

The scouts, led by a 15-year-old patrol leader, apparently took a wrong turn about noon Saturday after they had had their lunch and reached the first check point on the hike. Deputies said they turned toward Kent Lake instead of going around White's Hill.

Last night firemen in a four-wheel drive vehicle said the boys answered with a flashlight to calls from a loudspeaker.

This morning their equipment and clothing was found below Pine Mountain, but the boys had gone.

Rescuers followed footprints from the campsite to find the boys.

Sheriff's deputies, horsemen, scouts, firemen and Synanon residents were among those who helped in the search in the weather which was described as "extremely miserable."

Winds of up to 100 miles per hour kept a helicopter on the ground today.

Sirica Ponders Next Tapes Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Described as "disturbed over the turn of events," Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica was reported closely studying today what his next move will be in the raging dispute over President Nixon's secret tape recordings on Watergate.

An informed source who asked not to be identified said Sirica had looked into the procedure for possibly citing the President for contempt of court. But the source said this was not something that Sirica was likely to do immediately.

A court official said that the U.S. Court of Appeals probably would formally return to Sirica today or tomorrow jurisdiction over the tapes suit.

"That would require some sort of response from the White House," the official said. "What that response was would have some effect on what he (Sirica) does."

White House officials contend that a Nixon agreement with Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, fulfilled suggestions that the Court of Appeals made for a compromise.

Presidential Counsellor Melvin R. Laird said Sunday that because of the compromise, Nixon was not liable for contempt for failing to turn over the tapes to Sirica, as the judge had ordered. The appeals court upheld Sirica's order while calling for efforts to compromise the issue.

The status of the Ervin-Baker agreement with Nixon was unclear. Under that agreement, Nixon would provide a summary of conversations on the tapes to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., who would "authenticate" the report by listening to the recordings.

Most of the members of the seven-member committee were out of town for the Veterans Day weekend.

From comments they made in speeches and interviews, it appeared that Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., would support the compromise while Sens.

Vincent edged Point Arena, 21-20.

College of Marin was defeated by Contra Costa of San Pablo, 49-14.

Firing Of Cox Called Shocking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leaders of the AFL-CIO and some members of Congress advocated today that President Nixon resign or face impeachment because of his Watergate actions. (See other stories, pages 2 and 5.)

Some members of the House said they intended to introduce impeachment resolutions when Congress returns tomorrow after a Veterans Day holiday weekend.

A spokesman for Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House Republican Conference, said Anderson believed about 17 of 21 Democratic members and "possibly four or five" of the 16 Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee would favor "fairly immediate action" on an impeachment inquiry.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, at an emergency session in Miami Beach, approved a resolution saying Nixon either should bow out or else be removed by impeachment.

The resolution was stronger than one adopted by the council last week calling for Nixon's impeachment if he refused to obey court orders concerning the Watergate case.

The new resolution condemned Nixon for firing Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox and accused him of defying the courts. It called for his resignation and recommended impeachment if Nixon declined to do so.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, demanded in a speech to the AFL-CIO convention today that Nixon resign.

Inouye later told reporters if the President does not resign, "I suggest that the Congress of the United States should very seriously consider impeachment proceedings."

It is now clear that our

"We're shocked" at the firing of Watergate special investigator Archibald Cox, many Marin and Southern Sonoma County residents declared today.

Almost as many citizens felt President Richard M. Nixon should face impeachment for his action over the weekend leading to Cox's dismissal and the departure from the cabinet of the two top men in the attorney general's office.

Selecting names at random from telephone directories, Independent-Journal reporters found that very few persons refused to give an opinion on the Cox affair — and almost every one volunteered the comment that Nixon should be impeached.

Only one of more than two dozen private citizens called, defended the President's action, saying "more truth is going to come out" to clear Nixon of complicity in Watergate. Many said they felt Nixon had gone back on his word to give Cox a free hand in the investigation.

Asked, "what is your reaction to the resignation of the attorney general and the firing of Archibald Cox and the Deputy attorney general," these were their replies:

Roger E. Daniels, 31, property appraiser, of 119 Summit Avenue, Mill Valley — "There should be impeachment proceedings, very definitely. There should be some explanation to what has been going on, and nothing else will force it out into the open. My wife and I voted for Nixon, and had quite a lot of confidence in him, and it's shaken us quite a lot."

Terri Fontez, 26, optometric receptionist, 277 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael — "I think it was a good idea. I don't think Cox helped the President at all. He'll do better now that he got rid of Cox. More truth is going to come out and show the President is not as much behind Watergate as Cox thinks he is."

Mrs. Charles L. Porter, 56, owner of health food stores, 305 San Sebastian Way, Novato — "Nixon's off on the wrong track here as in many other areas. It certainly was an uncalled for thing."

Denise Thompson, 45, housewife, of 403 Cascade Drive, Fairfax — "We were quite shocked and very disappointed in the president. I don't care to elaborate further" but as to impeachment, "yes".

James D. Miller, 28, Navy officer, of 306 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley — "I'm pretty down on it. I think it's a dirty trick; it was against what Nixon said he was going to do. As to impeachment, I'd say emotionally yes; intellectually I don't know."

Mrs. J. Stanley Ferguson, 60, housewife, of 407 Chapman Drive, Corte Madera — "We were shocked and a little bit aghast that he'd have such nerve. We feel it's a little bit like the first days of Hitler and that he should be impeached."

Daniel J. Leonard, 27, credit manager, 65 Rodeo Avenue, Sausalito — "This was completely out of line for him to fire Cox. He appointed Cox to do a job and then he turned around and fired him."

Olive Cook, 54, housewife and manufacturer's representative for children's clothing firm, 1750 Lagoon View Road, Belvedere — "I think Nixon's nuts. I can't understand his reasoning. I'm thinking of signing a Common Cause petition that's being circulated about Nixon."

Barry Segal, 24, carpenter, 200 Elm Road, Bolinas — "I'm very concerned with what congress will do. I want Nixon impeached. Right now I feel he has too much power and congress has none."

Frank D. Parmelee, 76, retired, 30 Boulevard Terrace, Novato — "Mr. Nixon should be fired. He absolutely should be impeached."

Victorine Holmes, 32, housewife, 617 Trumble Avenue, Novato — "I imagine this will lead to Nixon's resignation or impeachment."

Script For A Black Watergate Weekend

Resignations, Firing End Chain Of Events

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At 5:23 p.m. Friday Oct. 19, Archibald Cox received a letter that marked the beginning of the end.

It began "Dear Archie" and was signed "Sincerely, Charlie." What happened in the next 27 hours elevated Watergate from scandal to crisis proportions and prompted the first serious talk by responsible leaders of impeachment of President Nixon.

The letter to Special Prosecutor Cox came from Charles Alan Wright, the Texas law professor hired by Nixon to fight Cox's demands for the President's secret tape recordings with top aides about the Watergate affair.

"It is my conclusion...that further discussions between us seeking to resolve this matter by compromise would be futile, and that we will be forced to take the actions that the President deems appropriate," Wright wrote Cox.

Exactly 27 hours later, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler strode grimly to the podium in the White House press room to announce that Cox had been fired and his special prosecution force abolished; that Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus also were gone.

The dramatic denouement began, according to insiders, Monday Oct. 15, when Nixon decided Cox had become "intolerable" and must be removed. He reportedly conveyed his wishes to Richardson, who demurred but agreed to try to seek a compromise.

That afternoon, White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig and Special Presidential Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt drove to Capitol Hill. The White House told reporters who spotted the pair there that they had been "briefing Congressional leaders on national security matters."

But Haig and Buzhardt really had been seeing Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the highly respected chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

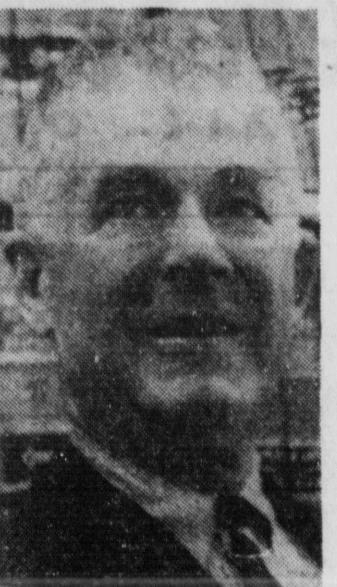

Their mission: to ask him to participate in a compromise—as yet not drafted—on the tapes dispute. Stennis was interested, but insisted he would not agree to help unless Chairman Sam J. Ervin and Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr. of the Senate Watergate committee bought the plan.

On Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 15 and 16, Cox and Richardson held what were described as "casual" discussions on the possibilities of reaching a compromise. Cox said he was willing to talk.

On Wednesday, Oct. 17, Richardson drafted a proposal whereby a man of "strong character and established reputation for veracity" would check the tapes against a White House-prepared verbatim transcript. After editing to delete state secrets and "embarrassing" material, he would certify the record as accurate and Cox responded favorably on Thursday, Oct. 18, saying he had "not the slightest desire" to embarrass the President or provoke a confrontation, but he was troubled by some parts of the plan and suggested revisions. Later that day he got a letter from Wright summarily rejecting Cox's key points.

"If you think that there is any purpose in our talking further, my associates and I stand ready to do so," Wright said. "If not, we will have to follow the course of action that we think is in the best interest of the country."

Wright and Cox talked by telephone that evening. Wright reportedly demanded that Cox give in on four crucial points, including a pledge not to subpoena any more White House materials. Cox refused and reiterated his position in a letter to Wright at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 19, stressing he had promised the Senate prior to his appointment that he pursue a vigorous, independent investigation.

"I cannot break my promise

now," Cox said.

Meanwhile, calls went out from the White House to Ervin in New Orleans and Baker in Chicago. They were whisked to Washington and met with Nixon for 40 minutes in the Oval Office, a session so secret that not even their top aides knew they were there.

Baker and Ervin agreed to the President's proposal to provide a "summary" of the tapes for the committee and the word was passed to Stennis. He was not told Cox had rejected the White House demands.

It was then that Wright wrote his last letter to Cox. The end had begun.

At the Justice Department, Richardson had been meeting off and on all day with his top aides. At 7 p.m., he reportedly got a letter from Nixon asking him to tell Cox to quit pursuing the tapes issue in the courts. The attorney general gulped a handful of potato chips, called it dinner, and the meetings intensified.

At 8:15 p.m., the White House released a statement from Nixon on saying a "compromise" advanced by Richardson had been endorsed by Ervin and Baker but rejected by Cox. Nixon would prepare a summary of the tapes, Stennis would verify it, and Cox was ordered to quit suing the President.

Richardson, unsmiling, left the Justice Department at 10:15 p.m. He was back 12 hours later, and the meetings of his high command resumed.

Saturday morning, Oct. 20, in North Carolina, Ervin had some second thoughts. He said he would not accept summaries and had thought he would get verbatim transcripts. Later he talked to the White House and it was smoothed over.

At 1 p.m., Cox began an unprecedented television press conference. He said he would continue to fight for the tapes and would not resign.

At midafternoon, Richardson let it be known the "compromise" was not his and he did not approve it, particularly the order to Cox to cease and desist.

At 4:45 p.m., Richardson's black limousine pulled into the White House drive. He spent 30 minutes with Nixon, refused the President's order to fire Cox.

He became acting attorney general.

"Perhaps this is not seven days in May but one day in October," said Henry Ruth, Cox's deputy, when the day was over.

Petersen Back In Driver's Seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Direction of the prosecution of the Watergate case now returns to Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, who had it in the first place. He faces some big decisions.

Former Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox had withheld grand jury indictments, expected against several top ex-White House aides, until he could learn the outcome of his suit to obtain President Nixon's secret Watergate tape recordings and other documents.

Nixon fired Cox after the one-time solicitor general said he would continue to pursue his suit to obtain them despite Nixon's orders not to.

Now Petersen must decide whether to proceed with indictments, and he must anticipate what effect the tapes or absence of them might have on the cases. Presumably he will obey Nixon's orders not to try to get the tapes.

In addition to pursuing cases growing directly out of the break-in of the Democratic National Headquarters offices at the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, Petersen also must decide whether to pursue the violations of the campaign finance law by corporations and their executive officers. Cox got three pleas of guilty on this last week.

Although Cox has been fired, the rest of the 81-member Watergate Special Prosecution Task Force—including 39 lawyers—has been transferred into the Justice Department. Petersen heads the department's criminal division.

About 35 persons attended a staff meeting after Cox's dismissal Saturday night. Spokesman James Doyle said not one person raised a hand when Deputy Prosecutor Henry Ruth asked who would not be on hand for work Tuesday.

"The message I want to get across today," Doyle said in a news briefing Sunday, "is that we are a criminal prosecution task force, we have reason to believe some serious crimes have been committed and we want to prosecute."

"We have some serious criminal proceedings under way," Doyle said. "The people higher up are going to have to make some hard decisions."

Reaction: Impeachment To Caution

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon's effort at a compromise on the Watergate tapes question this weekend and the resignations of key officials that followed prompted some of the nation's newspapers to call for impeachment today. Others counseled caution.

In an editorial, The New York Times said, "Perhaps the most tragic aspect of the President's course is that his studied defiance of law and of the courts is driving a lengthening list of responsible citizens...to the conviction that only the constitutional remedy of impeachment offers any hope of restoring the country to balanced government under the rule of law."

The Times called impeachment a "move of last resort—one that can only be viewed with grave disquiet."

The Chicago Tribune, while saying the compromise try "may be the worst blunder in the history of the presidency...," urged that neither the President "nor the nation should be subject to the price many of Mr. Nixon's critics now seem to have in mind—a hysterical, inflammatory and divisive political inquisition."

The Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer suggested that "the

I think that anyone who looks carefully at the tremendous and rapid changes of the past few years will begin to realize that the world is now passing through the greatest transformation in history.

In almost every field of human endeavor, man's greatest technological achievements before World War II can be matched or surpassed by developments since that time.

Look at the list: nuclear power, nuclear weapons, jet planes, intercontinental missiles, space travel, electronic computers, TV, DDT, penicillin, oral contraceptives, new grains, new biology, new psychological discoveries, satellite communications, new global organizations.

Whether we like them or hate them, these new developments are now producing massive changes in every part of society — farm, factory, transport, housing, bank, school, church, corporation, Army, police, city and national government — changes in everything from the family to the nation-state to the global society.

So many of these major developments occurred around 1944-45 that I think we might begin to regard 1945 as World Year Zero. The year 1973 then becomes WY 028 — and I have begun to write it that way in all my letters.

It is slightly eccentric, but it is a valuable daily reminder of how new this new world is, and how greatly it has changed from everything that has gone before.

Yet the pace of these changes may now be slowing down as they reach their physical and biological limits. Our weapons are already at the level of overkill. TV around the globe is already instantaneous — and you can only watch it for so many hours per day. A world monetary system is already being created. These new powers, and the problems they have brought with them, have been producing great social stresses for two decades now; but if we can learn to manage them as they begin to level off, we may soon find ourselves in a much less turbulent period, with a much better integrated global society. Our present changes have been like 10 Protestant Reformation and Industrial Revolutions rolled into one and occurring within a single generation.

But if we can make the step to that new world ahead — what I call "The Step to Man" — without killing ourselves, we and our children will be beginning a new form of planetary human existence such as mankind has never known.

What will this new world be like? Some things about it are fairly certain. For one thing, if we are going to live together on the planet for another hundred years — or a thousand years or a million years or longer — many aspects of life will have to be very different from what they have been during the past thousand or million years of man. Against such long time-scales it is obvious that population cannot go on increasing indefinitely. Neither can the consumption of nonrenewable natural resources, nor the consumption of power which overheat the earth, nor the pollution of land, water and air.

Global crisis due

We will have to move, certainly in the next century and probably in the next few years, to some kind of "steady-state society" all over the world. It will begin to resemble a mature adulthood, in which our knowledge, our powers, and our rates of communication will go on being larger than they have ever been before, but in which they will not continue to change in every generation as they did throughout our yeasty adolescence.

This will mean a somewhat surprising reversal of much of our traditional morality. Throughout our history, when it was hard and survival was perilous, it was good and moral to have large families, to "be fruitful and multiply." But in a crowded world, a true moral respect for human values requires limiting our families, so that we do not steal the space and goods of others.

When resources were unlimited, more production of consumer goods made a better life for everyone. But when the easily mined resources are on the verge of running out, further expansion of the non-service sectors of our economy uses up the materials essential for our children's survival.

Any on-going life for mankind will therefore demand that we learn and practice the morals imposed by ecology — imposed, that is, by the interacting network of plant and animal and human life around the planet, a seamless web of life that cannot be manipulated or polluted or destroyed at any point without damaging it everywhere. "Therefore choose life," as Deuteronomy tells us.

We must move now toward a global ethic of protecting our fragile biosphere from extinctions and oceanic pollution and radioactive fallout, and toward a personal ethic of having fewer children and recycling our goods and improving the quality of life.

In this context, one of the hardest problems to solve will be that of the developing countries, which are still far below the U.S. and the Western World in their levels of food, health, housing and schooling. In fact, the more equitable distribution of these necessities of life for all men may become one of the crucial ethical issues of the next decades.

We may find ourselves having to move and wanting to move, both for our own sake and for the world's sake, toward life-styles that are far less dependent on goods and far more consonant with our older high religious goals of human affection and service, creativity, and contemplation.

It is interesting to see how far we have already progressed toward these new goals and ways of life. Education has become our largest industry, and today one-third of all Americans are either teachers or students.

Our changing knowledge of biology, sexuality and human relations has been accompanied by declining birthrates, reform of abortion laws, changing family structures, communes, the women's lib movement, and even changing sexual attitudes in the churches.

The "human potential movement" grows along with an apparent return to religion and an ecumenical interest in mystical and Oriental philosophies. And there are parallel movements toward one world at the global organizational level, with new contacts and trade with Moscow and China, and with the rapid growth of great international corporations, and of nuclear communications, aviation, tourism, and what are now several thousand international non-governmental organizations.

This great step we are taking toward a more mature mankind is like a collective flash of awareness.

All together we are acquiring a new sense of our powers and our responsibilities for ourselves, our planet, and our future. If we survive, these new values and goals cannot help but lead to a more intelligent and responsive and humane society, where the great business of life will be loving each other and increasing our awareness and knowledge.

Nevertheless, those Utopian times have not yet come. And today, when the hope of peace continues to be frustrated by war, and when administrations continue to be overburdened and unable to handle their new difficulties, and there is violence and protest everywhere, the question is, how can we get through this transition period of the next few years? Answers are beginning to be given by several international citizens' groups — the World Law Fund, the Club of Rome, the World Ecistics Society, the Pugwash Conferences, and others.

They emphasize that our problems now are multiple and interacting, global and urgent, on a time scale of years rather than decades. And they see five problems as crucial: peace-keeping, population, pollution, exhaustion of resources, and the rich-poor gap.

Some of these problems — especially population, pollution, and the exhaustion of resources — are now beginning to get national and international attention and corrective action. But peace-keeping still hangs by a thread, depending on the personal relations of a few leaders. There are still no adequate agreements or international institutions capable of arms control or the management of nuclear weapons or prevention of a nuclear holocaust.

And the gap between rich and poor countries appears to be getting larger rather than smaller, and is all too likely to trigger revolutionary movements, powered by despair, that will change the political map and result in international stresses throughout the world.

Under these circumstances, the next decade is likely to be a period of great instability, with the steady growth of global networks competing at every moment with continuing conflicts and breakdowns. We see the need of some kind of transnational World Survival Movement which will carry through these crises and will begin to give us more leadership and planning toward the creation of our long-range global future.

Such a movement could become a focus of hope and action for millions of people who have begun to despair of our present arrangements and who do not know what to do or how to help each other in their different ways to build a world together. In particular, such a movement could take leadership in designing new peace-keeping and stabilization systems for the world, and new investment mechanisms to give billions in the poorer countries a sense of hope and progress.

If such a group has become widespread and has done its homework in time, the next

Nixon's Firing Of Cox Called Shocking

Shirley A. DeMartini, 48, housewife, of 15 Ana Court, San Rafael — "Both my husband and I think it's the worse thing in the world Nixon could have done. When Cox was appointed he was given a free rein. Now Nixon has yanked out the rug. It's ridiculous what that man is doing. I don't know about Richard Nixon . . ."

Philip B. Bradford, 66, retired, of 45 Bretagne Way, Greenbrae — "This is a disgraceful violation of the judicial system. Nixon is paranoid someone is out to get him. Elliot Richardson is an honorable man; he had to resign under the circumstances."

Barbara Zwicker, housewife, 211 Canal Street, San Rafael — "Well, I think it was kind of a dumb move on our president's part."

Elsie Tarabba, 50, housewife, 2 Rosebank Lane, Kentfield — "I really think the country is going to pot over all this. It's a wonderful country and all this is very sad."

Velma Bratina, 43, dental assistant, of 403 Via Herbsa, Ignacio — "I don't think he's done the right thing. I think the president is using too much power. I wish someone would get to the bottom of this and find out what's going on in the White House."

Jackie Chung, 17, student, of 558 A Miller Avenue, Mill Valley — "I think it's all a big joke. I think it's ridiculous. I think the president should be impeached."

Elizabeth Cresap, over 60, artist and businesswoman, of 774 Las Colindas Road, San Rafael — "If I had the power, I'd impeach him myself."

Jay Gates, 22, College of Marin student, 227 LaVerne Avenue, Homestead Valley — "This will let down a lot of people who believed in Nixon. He's saying, 'Nobody can go against me.' He seems like a dictator in firing the men who are prosecuting this case. I think there will be drastic action in Congress."

Mrs. Jean Cerwin, past 39, housewife, 4 Longfellow Road, Mill Valley — "I'm shocked. What's all this going to come to. But I don't know if impeachment would be wise."

Mrs. Elizabeth Quinn, 74, retired, 120 Bulkley Avenue, Sausalito — "President Nixon should have been out long before this. I voted for him but he's too much. He can have three or four homes, but I struggle along to keep up one."

Susan J. Gordon, 32, shop owner, 70 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley — "I think the president should be impeached. Nixon's a crook, he's crazy. He should be cleared out and we could start over again. Is this survey going to our congressman? It ought to."

Pola Martino, 40, housewife, of 1749 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael — "I was shocked that the president would dismiss a man he appointed. It makes me believe that Nixon is more deeply involved in Watergate than I had suspected. I am in awe and feel admiration for Richardson at his confirmation hearings about the independence of the special prosecutor and the resignation of Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general."

Chairman James E. Eastland, D-Miss., said the Senate Judiciary Committee would hold a meeting Wednesday morning. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield requested that the committee meet to discuss the weekend developments involving firing of Cox as special prosecutor and the resignation of Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general.

It was not clear what Mansfield's objective was in asking for the meeting.

In a telegram to Eastland, he referred to statements made by Richardson at his confirmation hearings about the independence of the special prosecutor would have.

"Certain commitments were made so that Mr. Archibald Cox would assume an independent position as special prosecutor," Mansfield said. "The Senate proceeded in good faith on the basis of these promises, pledges and commitments."

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., issued a statement calling for creation of a special prosecutor's office either by Congress or the courts. A source close to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said Sirica had determined he had no such authority.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said he favored disbanding the Watergate committee, setting up a new, independent special prosecutor, "and turn everything over" to him.

Direction of the federal investigation of Watergate now has been returned to Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, who held it before Cox was named special prosecutor.

But Syria reported in an official communiqué at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) that Syrian and Israeli war planes, artillery and ground forces fought a fierce battle in the Mount Hermon area today.

It said the battle was still going on.

The communiqué claimed six Israeli planes, including two helicopters, were shot down. Egypt now has claimed to have downed a total of 306 Israeli planes since the beginning of the war. Syria has claimed 324. Jordan has claimed two and Iraq and Lebanon one each.

That made a grand total of 634 Israeli planes the Arab countries have claimed to have shot down since the start of the conflict.

The Senate then sits as a jury with the Chief Justice of the United States presiding. The 17th president, Andrew Johnson, was impeached in 1868, but the Senate failed by one vote to muster the two-thirds vote required for conviction.

Only 12 government officials and judges have been impeached. Four were convicted.

Speaker Carl Albert, who would be president if Nixon were removed before a new vice president is confirmed, has said he will not comment on the possibilities of impeachment until tomorrow. An aide to House Democratic Whip John McFall of California said the leadership would meet before tomorrow's session to discuss the situation.

McFall, who opposed impeachment moves last fall, said: "Congress cannot allow Nixon to defy the courts."

White House staff members and secretaries made dozens of telephone calls yesterday, polling congressmen and local Republican leaders on their reaction to Nixon's course.

Officials said that Nixon felt Cox's position was intolerable and felt "in retrospect the establishment of a special prosecutor's office was an error."

White House staff members and secretaries made dozens of telephone calls yesterday, polling congressmen and local Republican leaders on their reaction to Nixon's course.

White House antipathy for Cox had been building for months. It climaxed last Monday, according to aides close to the President.

They said Nixon believed Cox had "gone far beyond his mandate" to investigate Watergate and was probing into matters not under his jurisdiction.

In addition, they said, Cox, who had served as solicitor general under the Kennedy administration, was displaying "political partisanship" and having too many Democrats for his staff.

The resignation of Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson was not a surprise, the sources said. "I think the President thought that the loss of Elliot was a painful necessity," said one aide. "He was saddened by the course of events but resolute in his determination."

Although Nixon was described as "undeterred" by the hostile reaction to the dismissals, some White House staffers admitted they were "shocked" and "stunned" by the rapid-fire events of Saturday night.

Rain Expected To End Today In North Bay

Wind-swept rains that drenched Marin over the weekend were to end today, giving way to partly-cloudy skies through tomorrow, according to federal forecasters.

The gusty storm that roared through Marin and left skies a leaden grey today dumped 1.35 inches of rain in the 48 hours to noon today on San Rafael.

Bolinas reported .97 of an inch in the 48 hours to 8 a.m. today, followed by Woodacre with .92 inch and Fairfax with .85 inch.

Other rainfall reported was Sausalito .37 inch; Mill Valley, .50 inch; Tamalpais Valley, .35 inch; Belvedere, .13 inch; Novato, .35 inch; Marinwood, .85 inch; and Petaluma, .36 inch.

The rainfall was blamed for a flurry of minor traffic accidents in San Anselmo and other parts of Marin, as well as scattered flooding.

Items On Agenda

The Marin Community College District 10-year construction plan and possible uses of surplus property at Hamilton Air Force Base will be considered by district trustees at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in room 160 of the Office Center at the College of Marin, Kentfield.

Report On Teacher Concerns On Agenda

The San Rafael Board of Education will consider a report on teacher concerns when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the administration office.

The board will also hear a report on the districts' new voter program.

IMPEACH

President is prepared to tear apart the national spirit and system to protect himself and his tapes.

President Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox produced calls today for Congress to select a special independent Watergate prosecutor. The Senate Judiciary Committee scheduled a Wednesday meeting on the Cox ouster.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., was among those urging a genuine effort on the part of Congress to ... set up a special prosecutor under special law" guaranteeing independence in his investigation.

Following Ervin's suggestion, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said he would introduce legislation tomorrow to re-establish the special prosecutor's office. Bayh suggested that Cox "would meet all the criteria" for the job.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., also called for creation by Congress of an independent prosecutor's office while urging start of impeachment proceedings against Nixon.

Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association, said Congress should "as its first priority, take whatever measures are available to re-establish the office of special prosecutor and make him independent of the direction and control of those whom he is investigating."

The announcement said "the object of the Egyptian attack was apparently to push the Israeli forces back with a view to the forthcoming cease-fire.

The frustration of this attempt proves that the IDF (Israeli) forces operating in Egypt are continuing to maintain the initiative and their superiority."

The Egyptian picture of the military position was different from that of Israel.

Authoritative diplomatic sources in Cairo said Egyptian forces mounted a major offensive last night to try to eliminate the Israeli bridgehead which, according to Egyptian military spokesmen, has penetrated up to only six miles into the Egyptian mainland west of the canal.

Egyptian spokesmen in Tel Aviv claimed the breakthrough was much greater than that.

The sources in Cairo said the offensive was designed to destroy the bridge head or, at least, drive the Israeli task force back across the canal in order to give Egypt a better military posture before acceptance of the cease-fire resolution.

The Egyptian decision, broadcast shortly after 2:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) by Cairo Radio, said:

"President Anwar Sadat, in his capacity as supreme commander of the armed forces, has issued an order to the general command to stop the fighting at the time specified in the Security Council resolution, provided the enemy is committed too."

The Egyptian announcement said among various considerations that led to Sadat's acceptance of the cease-fire were:

"Assurances which President Sadat received from Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and which were conveyed to Sadat in a special message by the Soviet ambassador to Cairo on the night of Oct. 21."

"Contacts which took place with a number of Arab capitals directly concerned in the battle."

Egypt had given no official news of today's fighting on either side of the canal up to the time of the cease-fire announcement.

But Syria reported in an official communiqué at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) that Syrian and Israeli war planes, artillery and ground forces fought a fierce battle in the Mount Hermon area today.

Reagan Silent On Nixon's Actions

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Democratic congressmen talked of possible impeachment, Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan said nothing publicly about President Nixon's latest actions in the Watergate tapes controversy.

Rep. Jerome Waldie of Antioch said he planned to introduce an impeachment resolution in the House tomorrow.

The Democratic congressman took a plane flight from San Francisco to Washington after Nixon's Saturday night announcement. Nixon said he had fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus, disbanded Cox's task force and accepted the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

"I intend now to seek impeachment," said Waldie, a member of the House Judiciary Committee. He worked in his Washington office yesterday, drafting the impeachment resolution.

"Cox is almost a legend of conscience and honor and integrity. And to find Richard Nixon removing him because of failure to disavow his honor and then following with a clean sweep of all that was left of honor and integrity in that administration, was just too much for the country to bear."

Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, the only living man to defeat Nixon in a campaign, said Nixon should agree with congressional leaders on a caretaker president to replace Vice President-designate Gerald Ford, then resign after the new nominee had been confirmed by Congress.

"Abe Fortas didn't want to resign (from the Supreme Court). I'm sure Agnew didn't want to resign. But the pressures get so heavy on you, you just can't govern anymore," Brown said.

Brown defeated Nixon for governor in 1962.

Richardson, Ruckelshaus Were Nixon's Two Brightest Stars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Less than a year into his second term, President Nixon has lost a vice president; two former cabinet members are under indictment; two top aides resigned; the White House staff has been reshuffled, and now his two brightest stars are gone.

More than a dozen persons connected with the White House or Nixon's re-election committee have pleaded guilty to criminal charges.

But the loss of Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus, who resigned to maintain their principles, may be the heaviest for Nixon to bear. They were his stars, men with friends across the political spectrum, and Nixon had placed them in a variety of crucial jobs.

Richardson, since 1969, had served Nixon as undersecretary of state; secretary of health, education and welfare; secretary of defense, and, finally, at the height of the Watergate revelations, as attorney general. He had a reputation as Nixon's top troubleshooter.

Ruckelshaus, coming to Washington from Indiana after a defeat for the Senate, rose quickly in responsibility and stature. He was assistant attorney general, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, acting FBI director and finally second in command of the Justice Department.

Before the events of the past three days, the toll of men associated with Nixon—involved in differing reasons—included the following:

The vice president—Spiro T. Agnew resigned Oct. 10 and pleaded guilty to one count of income tax evasion.

The Justice Department—John N. Mitchell, Nixon's first attorney general and his campaign manager in 1968 and briefly in 1972, is under federal indictment in New York on charges of conspiracy and perjury. His successor, Richard G. Kleindienst, resigned April 30 at the peak of the Watergate revelations, citing his association with principals in the case.

The Commerce Department—Maurice H. Stans, Nixon's first commerce secretary and re-election finance chairman in 1972, is under indictment in New York in the same case as Mitchell.

The FBI—Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III's nomination to become permanent director was withdrawn in March after testimony at his confirmation hearings that he had provided records about the FBI's Watergate investigation to the White House. He resigned as acting director after it was reported he destroyed the contents of the White House safe of Watergate defendant E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Ruckelshaus was temporarily FBI director.

Have We Learned Nothing From Vietnam War?

Independent Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

8 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

When what had been French Indochina was broken up after World War II, the former colonies of Annam and Tonkin were made into Vietnam, under Emperor Bao Dai, a French puppet.

Many of the people, however — especially the Tonkinese in the north — refused to accept Bao Dai's government. A military force under Ho Chi Minh drove out the French, and the new country was embroiled in civil war.

In an attempt to end the fighting, an international conference at Geneva, Switzerland, on July 21, 1954, partitioned Vietnam along the Ben-Hue River, near the 17th parallel of latitude.

THE PARTITION did not end the fighting. Civil war intensified in Vietnam.

North Vietnam received arms from the Soviet Union and Communist China. And so, the United States armed South Vietnam. The excuse was to "counter the Communist threat."

The limited involvement of sending arms did not, of course, end the war. And so — again to "counter the Communist threat" — the United States sent small troop units as "advisers" to the South Vietnamese army. And as the fighting grew worse, the U.S. seized on an incident in the Tonkin Gulf as excuse to send whole armies of American soldiers and marines. By the start of 1969, we had more than a half million fighting men in Vietnam.

There was little outcry over sending arms to Saigon. There was not much more over sending the first "advisers." But as the involvement escalated, so did the opposition to it. The outcry became so great it caused President Lyndon B. Johnson to decide against seeking another term. It convulsed our campuses and our cities. It "turned off" a whole generation of American youth. And in the jungles and rice paddies of Vietnam, it cost us many of the flower of that youth and many billions of wasted dollars.

FOLLOWING World War I, the territory of Palestine was created in the Middle East, including the holy city of Jerusalem. It was made a League of Nations mandate, to be governed by the British.

Opposition to the British rule grew over the years, among both Jews and Arabs. In an attempt to end the problem, the United Nations ruled in 1947 that Palestine should be divided into two states, one Jewish and one Moslem.

The proposed partition did not end the dispute. Civil war broke out.

On May 15, 1948, Jewish leaders proclaimed establishment of the state of Israel. But neighboring Arab states refused to accept its boundaries, and fighting continued — and has, spasmodically, ever since.

Now it has broken out anew with an attempt by the Arab states to retake territory seized from them by Israel in earlier battles.

The Arab states receive arms from the Soviet Union. And so, the United States sends arms to Israel. The excuse is to "counter the Communist threat."

SO FAR, few voices have been raised against this involvement. And many of those who objected most strenuously to United States involvement to "counter the Communist threat" in Southeast Asia urge our involvement for the same reason in the Middle East.

Must the parallel continue until "military advisers" and then whole armies are sent from this country into the Middle East? Was even the tragedy of Vietnam not enough to teach us a lesson?

Rockefeller Strong Front-Runner Among Republican Office Holders

ROCKEFELLER GAINING POLITICAL SUPPORT. We all know by now that Gerald Ford was the popular choice of Republican leaders for the vice presidency. But within the survey the White House made of GOP congressmen and governors, Nelson Rockefeller made a very strong showing.

He ran second among 168 congressmen contacted by presidential aides, with John Connally a close third. The 19 GOP governors were overwhelmingly for Rockefeller. The national committee members split four ways among Ford, Rockefeller, Reagan and Connally.

Assuming that few Republican leaders were viewing Ford as a serious contender for 1976, Rockefeller's backing enhances his presidential prospects.

IS TEDDY KENNEDY the one? Most politicians consider him the leading Democratic candidate. But is he really going after the 1976 nomination?

The best-informed Kennedy-watchers are in Massachusetts, and the Boston Globe's executive editor and columnist, Robert Healy, reports that Senator Kennedy will not run unless he is convinced by good evidence he can win.

"Watergate," he says, "might make the Kennedy election impossible with Chappaquiddick... Winning the Democratic nomination for Kennedy is not going to be the most difficult thing he has done. But winning the election in 1976 may be a great deal more difficult, and Kennedy will not run unless he sees the presidency within his reach."

The latest Harris poll indicates it may not be within his reach. The poll shows that 43 per cent of the voters "do not fully trust his integrity."

MANY BUSINESSMEN QUITTING GOVERNMENT. Federal agencies are increasingly concerned at the high turnover of undersecretaries and assistant secretaries who have come to government from industry. They find that about one-third quit in less than 12 months and nearly 40 per cent after the second year. Such a rapid turnover at the executive level in business would be deemed disastrous.

New Attitude Of Public Officials: 'How Much Can I Get For It?'

(Reprinted from Turlock Journal)

Until recent years outstanding citizens took pride in representing members of their community on city councils and boards of supervisors. There they had a chance to serve their areas competently because they had an intimate knowledge of local conditions and took pride in how well they could do the job.

This was well represented by previous councils in Turlock, in which the mayor and city councilmen ran the city so efficiently they could lower the tax rate for several successive years, while other areas were suffering from increased taxes.

TWO GRIM TEEN-AGE statistics. Teen-age drinking is on the rise as states have lowered the age for the legal purchase of liquor. Second, and probably related, teen-age drunken driving accidents are also on the rise. Such accidents increased 60 per cent in New Jersey and 150 per cent in Michigan since drinking at 18 became legal.

Drunken teen-age motorists are involved in fatal accidents at the rate of one every two hours. In recent years 26 states have lowered the legal drinking age to 18 years. We may see a trend in the other direction soon.

A SMALL BOON to careful driving. Federal officials are looking into the idea of requiring automobile manufacturers to cut back their car speedometers from 120 m.p.h., 140 m.p.h., even 160 m.p.h., to 90 m.p.h. This itself is higher than legal speed limits on any highways in the nation. They see such indicated speeds as an inducement to bravado and to hazards as well as illegal driving.

IS THE GENERATION GAP a myth? Certainly not entirely, but new evidence shows that it has been overstated.

Researchers M. Kent Jennings and Richard Niemi surveyed the political attitudes of 1,700 high school students and their parents eight years ago. They interviewed most of the same persons again this year. A majority of both groups in 1965 supported the federal government's efforts at desegregation, but in 1973 this idea did not get a majority in either group. There remain wide differences within the nation on this issue, but the division is not generational.

CAMPUSES TOO QUIET, students too docile! The question which many college presidents are asking is whether rebellion against rebellion hasn't gone too far. They find that not only are campus activists no longer very active but that student withdrawal from positive interest in public affairs is reaching near to indifference and apathy.

College officials don't want violence, but they do want alert concern with what goes on in the world. They see too little of it today.

to give the prize to Mr. Nixon, who was duly nominated for it months ago. Fifteen months ago, in fact — by myself, among others.

People chuckled then, and forgot about it as something for politicians and columnists to amuse themselves with during the dog days between the conventions and the campaign. Considering all that has happened since, they laugh even more hysterically now.

So Mr. Nixon overwhelmed George McGovern in November. He also tapped every telephone call and conversation he had. He was proven to be such a faulty judge of character (or instigator of mischief) that his vice president, much of his cabinet and most of his former top White House staff are under indictment, fired, resigned or otherwise disgraced.

He also has maintained that he is above the law, thus provoking a constitutional confrontation that may bring him to impeachment.

IT MADE AS MUCH sense as anything else that happened all week. More. The only thing that might have topped it would have been for the Nobel committee

Public Campaign Financing Answer?

Yours Saturday (Oct. 13) editorial, "Politics Erosion, etc." was a most perceptive and understanding writing about this country's electoral moral bog. Along with Spiro Agnew there must be countless other politicians immersed in it. This being the case:

1. Would not the current drive for public financing of political campaigns be an obvious remedy? And,

2. Would the I-J consider statewide, even nationwide distribution of that Oct. 13 article to our elected decision makers?

Reader Feels Agnew's Sentence Too Light

So Agnew's penalty is three years probation.

He is caught with both hands in the till. The evidence gathered against him is devastating, total, and virtually irrefutable. . . And he gets three years probation.

A black man, unable to find a job, rips off a used car, and will probably receive five years in prison. Spiro rips off an entire state and maybe a piece of Washington; behind an unremitting air of self-righteousness and moral indignation he violates the trust of millions of Americans — and he gets three years probation. So much for law and order.

Spared even a trial, he is allowed to slide off into history, still flailing at the press as he recedes into the mists. Adding injury to insult, the same blood-thirsty old birds who always bemoan judicial permissiveness, who yowl for ever stiffer penalties, who plead for capital punishment — suddenly — for Agnew, they become bleeding hearts. "Poor Spiro," they say. "The fellow has suffered enough. Let us be compassionate. Leave the chap alone."

It's enough to make an honest man retch.

Claims Accreditation Story Shows Bias

The Independent-Journal's long-standing bias against public education is showing again — this time in its distorted account of the preliminary report by the accreditation team which visited College of Marin last week. The I-J's account, which omits any mention of the long list of commendations by the team of the quality of instruction, preparation of staff, spirit of students, community support, etc., must surely leave the reader with the impression that the team had generally negative feelings about the college, which is not the case. The team was actually quite positive, as anyone who attended the preliminary reporting session would have known (was an I-J reporter actually there?), while at the same time offering helpful suggestions for improvement.

I suggest that having created the erroneous impression of a college under heavy fire from its accrediting team, the I-J has an obligation to report the many positive observations and over-all opinion of that team when its official report is released. The College of Marin is a fine institution whose community deserves more responsible reporting than Friday's one-sided version. If the I-J was in such a hurry as to be unable to report the story in any depth (the only charitable explanation that comes to mind), then in its haste for headlines it would have been far more accurate to cite the words of an accreditation team member who said to me at the end of his visit, "You have a damn good college here!" We do.

Too Many People Already In Marin

Those people who advocate increasing southern Marin County's water supply for limited population growth are not unlike someone who lectures on navigation while the ship is going down! Some proponents of Measure E (water bonds) on the November ballot cite the need to attract low-income housing through increased water resources. Unfortunately, the issue does not concern merely the disparity in numbers which exists between rich and poor people in Marin County but rather the fact that there are too many people of any economic class here already.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 22, 1963

A. E. Almcrants resigned again as city manager of Mill Valley, with a proviso that he remain in office until a successor was chosen — which might not be until the April, 1964, municipal election.

E. Warren McGuire resigned as Marin County counsel, effective Dec. 31.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 22, 1953

The Fairfax School District board voted to tear down the old Fairfax School, built in 1921, because bringing it up to state earthquake-resistance standards would cost almost as much as a new building.

Lee Roy Javine of Los Angeles, paroled from San Quentin, appeared at the prison gate and asked to be put back in a cell because "my in-laws are driving me nuts."

While continuing to have trust in his dealings with government, a citizen should never fail to count his change.

There is no problem in Marin County that cannot be attributed to increased population growth. Anyone who has lived in this county long enough to gain any perspective has witnessed an obvious decline in the quality of life available here and in the Bay Area generally. This decline is due to more automobiles, burgeoning stores, less living space, and a resultant courtesy which is endemic. Rich folks aren't the only ones who eat, sleep, drive, procreate, and defecate — all of which activities require increased tax supported facilities.

Proposition One Not Answer To Need

Proposition 1 on the November ballot is not the answer to California's need for tax reform. It fails to give us meaningful tax reform which is fair to all citizens. Instead Proposition 1 promises greater savings to the wealthy and very little benefit to those with median incomes of $13,000.

Proposition 1 is not the answer because it freezes into our already overly lengthy constitution a complex and inflexible amendment of 3,700 words. Long as it is, Proposition 1 does nothing to make the Legislature less subject to pressure from special interests and does nothing to help legislators develop rational priorities for deciding how the limited expenditures should be allocated. The proposed amendment, however, specifies that it will cost an initial $568,000 and then $236,000 each year to administer.

We oppose Proposition 1 because it is not fair fiscally and it does not make good sense constitutionally. In addition, Proposition 1 only acts to undermine the representative nature of our government by choking the legislature with complex formulas, stringent limitation and the necessity of a two-thirds vote on tax measure. It also strikes at the balance of political power in state government by granting the governor unusual powers in

Agnew Not Simply Good Man Gone Wrong

Re your editorial of Oct. 13, "Politics' Erosion of Ideals, Integrity."

The dictionary defines crime as "An act committed in violation of a law prohibiting it." And criminal as "Having the nature of crime; wrong; immoral." A person guilty of, or legally convicted of a crime.

Mr. Agnew is not "a good man gone wrong!" He is a criminal! He has been involved in crime for a number of years including the years he served as vice president of the United States.

Your editorial in attempting to explain away his criminal actions as being a more-or-less natural and irrevocable result of the political process does great injustice to the many who came into office as bright, honest, energetic, idealistic young people and went on to serve their constituency without taking graft, avoiding their income tax or participating in other criminal activities.

I take further exception to your editorial because of its failure to recognize that the young people of today are the ones that are bringing a long awaited end to crime and corruption in government. There is a renaissance of political morality taking place in this country and the young people behind it are not going to follow the outlined path to disgrace your editorial implies is inevitable.

Rip-off Of Property Owners In Name Of County Planning

Encouraged by three supervisors, Marin County planners are again eyeballing rural Marin lands that escaped the county's A-60 zoning blanket last year. (There were a few, believe it or not.)

It seems the county general plan, which is nearing the status of gospel, just won't allow a rural property owner to have 10 or 20-acre zoning on his land. It has to be A-60 — meaning 60-acre lot minimum.

To understand this rip-off being encouraged by the three Wizards of Oz — Michael Worm, Gary Giacomini and Arnold Baptiste — one must review the agonizingly long rezoning hearings.

The hearings were held to comply with the state's Williamson Act, which requires agricultural preserve lands to be zoned compatible with agricultural uses.

A-60 zoning, the planners decided, would protect agricultural and open space by "discouraging disruptive and discontiguous" urban development. More than half the county was so zoned.

THERE WERE SEVERAL exceptions, however.

1. Lands where the predominant lot size was smaller than 60 acres were rezoned to reflect the existing lot size — hence A-3, A-5, A-10, A-20, A-30 and A-40 categories.

2. Lands for which development plans were under way prior to the start of the rezoning hearings were to be zoned in accordance with those plans.

3. Other lands where the property owner presented arguments for higher density zoning because of some overriding factor.

The Moreda Ranch near Samuel Taylor State Park is one example where higher density zoning was granted under the third exception.

This property was illegally subdivided and sold to 12 unsuspecting buyers who had been told they could each resubdivide again, realizing some profit.

After a lengthy hearing, during which hardnosed planners recommended A-60 zoning, supervisors approved A-20 and A-30 zoning to allow each property owner some return on his "good faith" investment. The approved zoning allows 29 homes on the combined 870-acre property.

The rezoning hearings lasted about a year, ending last November.

Besides the Moreda Ranch, major holdings which were granted higher density zoning are the Bull Tail Ranch, the Gonzales Ranch, the Cutter Ranch, and the Procter Trust properties, all in the Nicasio area. These total about 4,000 acres with a combined density allowing 180 homes.

They either had development plans or property owners gave some overriding reason for the higher density.

NOW, A YEAR LATER, the planners and supervisors are proposing to change the zoning.

Why? It's simple. The rules have changed. There wasn't an approved county plan a year ago.

"Existing zoning is not in conformance with the county-wide plan," the planners say. And here comes the rip-off.

Planning Director Werner von Gundel as much as admits it when he writes:

"Many of the zoning actions in the Nicasio area were reached after long, agonizing hearings. Personal hardships and other unusual conditions were sometimes the deciding factor. Reopening the issues will most likely cause equally difficult hearings. However, the adoption of the countywide plan warrants at least some reconsideration of past zoning actions."

The only trouble with his thinking is he doesn't give one thought to maybe changing the county plan to conform with the recently approved zoning.

Viet Deaths Since Truce Top 10,000

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon command said today the number of government soldiers killed in action since the Jan. 28 cease-fire passed the 10,000 mark today. It said that as of noon, combat deaths totaled 10,010.

In addition, the government says 1,690 civilians have been killed since Jan. 28 and it claims 36,451 Communists killed, for a reported total of 48,151 battle deaths on both sides during the so-called cease-fire.

Communist forces decimated five local militia platoons in the Mekong Delta 60 miles southwest of Saigon Sunday, military sources said today.

It was the sharpest clash in a day of heavy fighting throughout South Vietnam. Official government figures and military sources combined showed a total of 71 Communist and 37 government soldiers killed, and 41 government soldiers killed and 11 missing in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today.

On the truce front, the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG-Viet Cong) delegation to the two-party Joint Military Commission said the South Vietnamese government delegate walked out of a military subcommittee meeting today, alleging that the PRG delegate had talked more than 30 minutes.

More Arab States Halt Oil Supplies

BEIRUT (UPI) — Three Arab states yesterday joined four others in halting oil deliveries to the United States, establishing a total Arab boycott that will stop the flow of about 6 percent of all oil consumed in the United States.

In another move, two hard-line Arab oil producers — Algeria and Iraq — added Holland to the oil embargo because of its backing of Israel in the 1973 Middle East war. Iraq called for even sterner measures aimed at ending U.S. support of the Israelis.

The Iraqi news agency said it called on the Arab oil producing countries to nationalize all U.S. oil and economic interests in the Arab world, withdraw Arab funds from U.S. banks and break off Arab-American diplomatic and economic relations.

The three Persian Gulf states of Bahrain, Kuwait and Qatar announced the cut-off of oil deliveries to the United States, making the Arab boycott unanimous. Libya, Algeria, Abu Dhabi and Saudi Arabia announced a similar boycott last week.

In addition, most of the Arab oil producers introduced immediate 10 per cent production cuts to strengthen the five percent per month cut generally agreed upon last week.

The oil producers, led by Saudi Arabia, said the production cuts and embargo would last until Israel withdraws from all territories it occupied in the 1967 war and agrees to restore "the legitimate rights" of Palestinian refugees.

Telethon Raises Over $3 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police said the robber apparently thought he had a good thing going. For the past four Sundays he had held up Baur's Pastry Shop at gunpoint and escaped with $300.

This Sunday, however, detectives arrested him as he walked out. They shot him in the shoulder when he pulled his gun, but he began running and was only captured after he tripped and fell.

Police said a clerk told them that the suspect, Charles Williams, 23, New York, was the same man who had been there the previous weeks.

Oil sources said the boycott by the seven Arab states will stop the flow of about 2 million barrels of oil a day, or about six per cent of the U.S. consumption according to the Middle East Economic Survey.

Driver Next In Boosting Auto Safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing auto safety standards that have cut the highway slaughter rate, Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar says attention should now focus on the driver.

In a UPI Washington Window interview Sunday, Brinegar said that although safer cars have been the aim of recent government efforts to reduce the annual death toll of 57,000, "in terms of quick payoff, we're back harder on the driver."

"I think that some of the quick, early things that could have been done to the automobile have been done — the collapsible steering gear, improved windshields, the seatbelts, the shoulder harness, and perhaps ahead of us, the air bag — those technological things have pretty well been explored," Brinegar said.

He said the government has issued more than 40 safety standards for cars since passage of the Highway Traffic Safety Act in 1966.

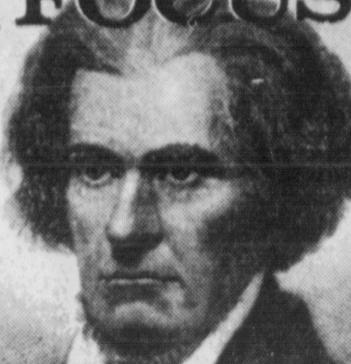

Brinegar, however, admitted the highway death rate on a "per-mile traveled basis" has fallen since the tougher standards were issued.

"If the traffic death rate had stayed as it was in 1966, the fatality rate would now be about 75,000 or 80,000 a year," he said, noting that alcohol was involved in about half the fatalities.

"Those things seem to tell you that if you want to put a lot of effort into quick results — which the country wants — it should be on the driver, and I think that's where you'll see some emphasis."

"It's a matter of singling out ones who are causing most of the accidents," he said.

FOCUS

Former Vice President

Until this month, John C. Calhoun was the first and only Vice President ever to resign. He left office in 1832 to claim a U.S. Senate seat he had won in South Carolina. Born in Calhoun spent most of his adult life in government — U.S. Representative, Secretary of War, Vice President under two different presidents, Secretary of State, and U.S. Senator. He became a leader of the southern forces in the Senate, and he remains best known as the proponent of the doctrine of states rights around which the Southern states rallied in the years before the Civil War. Calhoun died in 1850.

DO YOU KNOW — Who must approve a President's choice of a new Vice President?

BUT THEY'RE THERE UFOs Are Said Not From Space

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
Two Los Angeles area space experts agree that many people who report seeing unidentified flying objects (UFOs) are seeing something, but question that the UFOs are extraterrestrial spaceships under the control of nonhuman creatures.

"People are seeing something; they're not hallucinating," said Dr. William J. Kaufman, director of the Griffith Observatory. "It's clear that they're seeing things for which standard, run-of-the-mill explanations do not suffice. But just because they see something strange in the skies doesn't mean that the something strange is a vehicle controlled by an alien intelligence. That just doesn't work."

A rash of UFO sightings began two weeks ago in Mississippi when two shipyard workers on the Pascagoula River reported they were kidnapped by space visitors with pointed ears who took them aboard a cigar-shaped spaceship and examined them.

There have been hundreds of other sightings in states from coast to coast. Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio reported seeing a UFO made of amber light just outside Ann Arbor, Mich. Deputies reported chasing five amber-colored saucers flitting just above tree-top level in Louisiana.

Many of the UFOs have turned out to be weather balloons. Some of the sightings turned out to be hoaxes.

Philip J. Klass, a senior editor with the magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology, who has written one book putting down UFOs — "UFOs-Identified" — and is currently writing a sequel, said, "There simply is not a shred of physical evidence for UFOS after more than 25 years of sightings. Quite literally, not a shred, in any of the tens of thousands

Two Rescued From Bay By Fireman

A Sausalito fireman swam through icy waters last night to help rescue a man who had been pulled from the back bumper of a Volkswagen which had careened off Bridgewater into the bay.

Firemen report that at about 8:30 p.m. Peter Schunk of 29 McCoy Road, San Rafael, was driving north on Bridgewater in a borrowed Volkswagen when a car in front of him stopped quickly. Schunk told firemen that when he tried to stop, his bumper hit the bumper of the Volkswagon which had careened off Bridgewater into the bay.

At 8:37 p.m. the fire department arrived, and Lt. Dustin Leer swam out with a line to the car. Two minutes after the three were hauled to shore, the car sank.

"The victim and hero went to the firehouse for hot showers and coffee," said Leer.

INVASION AT SUNSET — A flotilla of small craft ferries 60 Marine reservists from M Company, 23rd Marines of San Rafael, toward Angel Island. The reservists conducted a realistic battle drill Saturday evening, establishing a beachhead and wresting the island from a force of 25 Navy "bad guys" between 8 p.m. and midnight. The brief war didn't begin until the last tourist had left the island, and was over long before tourists returned yesterday morning. Bruce Lehman, Marine reservist and an Independent-Journal employee, took along his camera for the outing.

Marin Marine Reservists Invade Angel Island

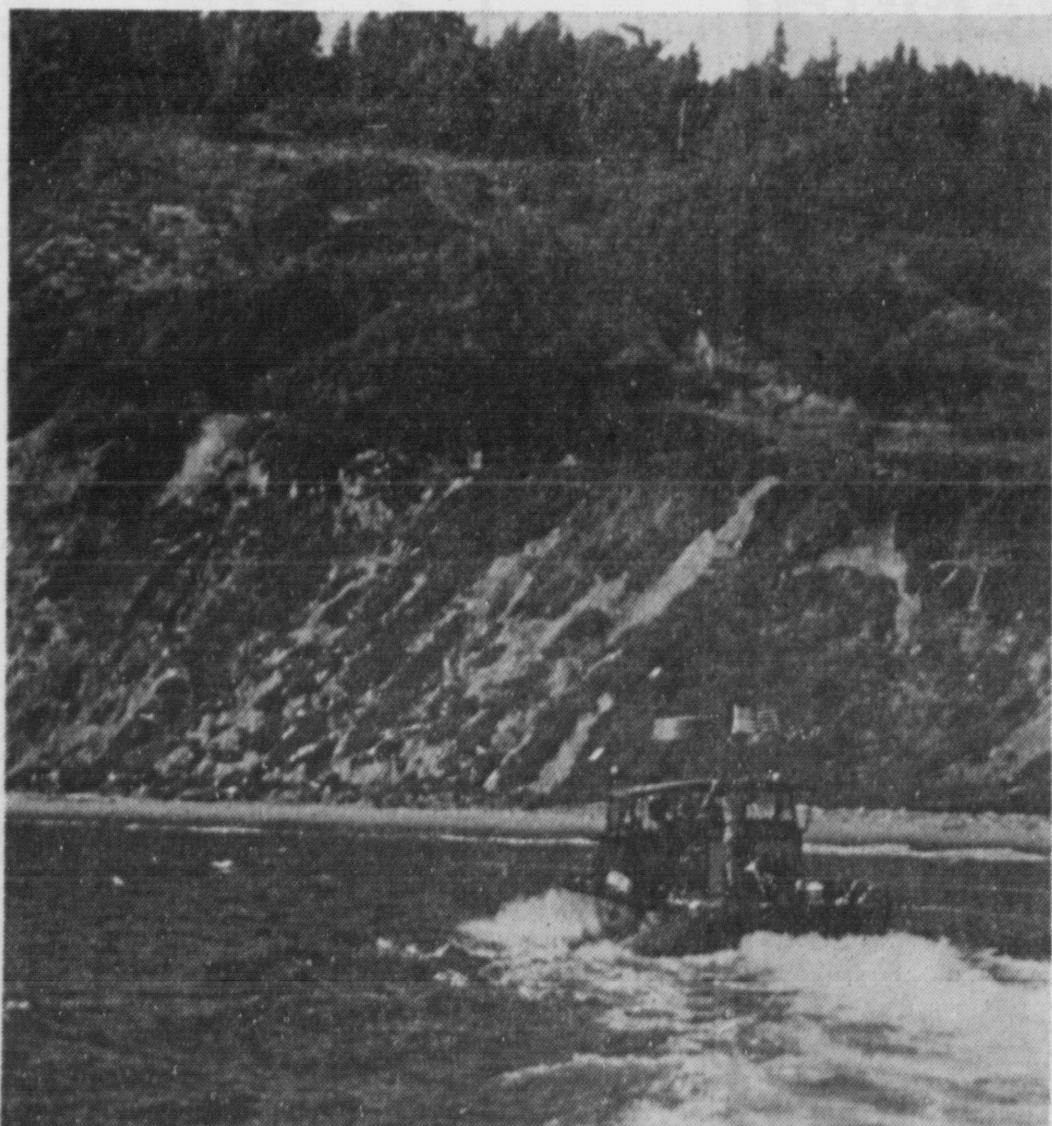

DOING THEIR HOMEWORK — An M Company officer briefs the Marines in a classroom at their armory in Santa Venetia, about the terrain where they are to land, the number of "aggressor" forces on the island, weather conditions and other factors.

DOING THEIR DIRTY WORK — Two Navy men, part of the aggressor force on the island, rig booby traps prior to the Marines' landing. The fireworks after sunset caused many Bay Area residents to call authorities, speculating on causes ranging from war to UFOs.

LANDING SITE — All is deceptively calm as a patrol boat surveys Angel Island's rocky southwestern side a few hours before the night-time landing.

The boats, manned by Marin Island sailors, were the same type used extensively in South Vietnam military operations.

CHECKING THEIR CRAFT — Marine reservists are guided through the armored craft they are to ride for the Angel Island exercise, at Mare Island Naval Shipyard.

However, the Marines were bused back to Tiburon, and only rode the boats across Raccoon Strait.

Dominoes Increasing In Game Popularity

By JOAN LISETOR

"Most people say, 'Oh, dominoes. I played that as a child.' They don't realize there is so much more to the game than matching numbers," said Daisie Hansen.

Mrs. Hansen is the secretary-treasurer of the International Domino Association. The association coordinates domino tournaments sponsored by charity organizations, such as the one Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary, which is having Saturday at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley.

When an organization decides to have a tournament a representative clears the date with Mrs. Hansen, who runs the IDA office from her Corte Madera townhouse.

She provides the organization with the IDA membership list of 655 members, which includes members in England and Malta.

"Members will go anywhere to play in a good tournament, and they get upset if there is one and they are not invited to play. The call me and want to know why they didn't get an invitation," she said.

"Dominoes, if played properly, is tougher than bridge, because in bridge you bid and give your partner an inkling of what you have in your hand. Dominoes is more difficult because you don't know what is left in the bone yard," she said.

Mrs. Hansen started playing dominoes 20 years ago. She enjoys playing at home but said she is too busy to play much in tournaments. As a consequence, she said, she is not as sharp as the good players, who have that sense that tells them what others have in their hands.

SHE DID play last week when she went on the cruise ship Spirit of London as a tournament director. Also she filled in recently for a tournament participant who wasn't doing well and left the tournament during the lunch break.

Entry fees range from $25 to $150, and prizes and master points are given to the winning teams. Mrs. Hansen and other members of the IDA board of directors serve as judges for tournaments, but a better term would be referees, according to Mrs. Hansen.

"If there is a question or an argument we bring out the rule book," she said. "We have standardized dominoes with a set of rules and penalties. If you knock a domino over, and women often do because their bottoms get in the way, there is a penalty. You could be doing it purposely to let your partner know what you have."

A native of Ohio, Mrs. Hansen grew up in St. Louis, Mo. She lived in San Francisco for 20 years before moving to Corte Madera seven years ago.

Joining the IDA one year after it was formed, she has for Boys in Marinwood was the setting for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Denise Jean Battaglieri of San Rafael and Roger Alan Duensing of Orono.

The couple will live in San Francisco.

Denise chose her sister Debbie Battaglieri of San Rafael as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Colleen Murray of Daly City and Mrs. Mary Manders of San Francisco.

Barry Duensing served as best man for his brother. The ushers were Cliff Fisher of San Francisco and John Miller of Chico.

After the wedding a reception was given at the Marin Country Club.

Denise, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Battaglieri of San Rafael, attended South San Francisco High School and is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and the College of Marin. She is a student at California College of Court Reporting in San Francisco.

She is the sister of Diane Battaglieri of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Battaglieri of San Francisco.

Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Duensing of Orono, is a graduate of Oroville High School and attended Butte County Junior College. He is employed with Dodge, Carroll, Sheffield and Minder official reporters firm in San Francisco.

He is the grandson of Mrs. Lillian Duensing of Oroville and Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Chiarello of Susanville.

Woman Of Year Award

Mrs. Billie Garl, executive secretary of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, was honored as Novato business woman of the year by the Novato Business and Professional Women's Club on Friday.

She will be given the award Tuesday at 7 p.m. at San Marin High School at a special meeting of the club.

Novato Mayor Fred F. Ruegg will make the presentation.

ON THE AGENDA

Autumn Auction '73 Is Slated By Dominican College Alumnae

"Autumn Auctions 1973" will be held by the Dominican College Alumnae Association on the San Rafael campus of the college Thursday and Friday.

The college benefit activities will include a box lunch with entertainment and a silent auction, beginning at 11 a.m., on Thursday in Hawthorn Court on the campus. They will be followed by a tour of historic Dominican Convent until 3 p.m.

On Friday the alumnae will sponsor a party and auction at 7 p.m. in Caleruega Hall featuring a cocktail buffet supper, dancing, an art exhibit and an auction. Some of the auction items will be a knitting machine, a stained glass window, a Chinese dinner for eight with chefs, maid and butler, a bay cruise and weekends at Lake Tahoe. Also included will be handcrafted articles made by the Dominican Sisters and members of the alumnae association.

Tickets are available from the alumnae office at Dominican and Mrs. James Freier, or at the door for both events.

DON TIMOTEO School Club will present a physical education night program Thursday with Angelo Colombo, director of physical education for San Rafael Schools, as the speaker.

The meeting will open at 7:30 p.m. in room 25 of the school in Terra Linda.

Colombo will speak on the physical education program's effects on the child and give a progress report on results of the four year old program in San Rafael city schools.

A JOINT reception will be given by Court St. Raphael 1406 and Court Our Lady of the Miracle 1707, Catholic Daughters of America at Our Lady of Loretto parish hall in Novato at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The reception to honor new members of both courts is chaired by Pat Simpkins. Honored guests will be state regent Mrs. Marie Miraglia. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Rose Elinor Murphy, second vice state regent; Mrs. Lorraine Irving, state chairman on ecumenism; and Mrs. Clarabelle Fox, secretary of the home board.

Also invited are officers and members of courts throughout the Bay Area.

A DECORATOR tour through Baker, Kanpp and Tubbs, a San Francisco showroom of furnishings normally open only to designers, will be sponsored by the Marin Chapter of Clipped Wings, at 11 a.m. Friday.

Edwin Smalle, interior designer and instructor in design at Indian Valley College in Novato, will escort the tour.

Mrs. Jon Anderson of Novato and Mrs. Philip Shivell of San Rafael are reservations chairmen.

Clipped Wings supports programs for the mentally retarded on a local and national level.

A COCKTAIL party with a Dixieland band will be presented from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at Peacock Gap Country Club by the Santa Venetia Middle School Parent-Teacher Association.

Activities will include tiny tot games, a creative arts booth and a hot dog lunch.

Parents and faculty members are invited to the get-acquainted gathering. The chairmen are Mmes. James Robertson and Leon Fish.

"SAN RAFAEL" will be the topic of Dorothy Gardiner, Independent-Journal historian, in the annual training course for Tour Marin guides of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary. She will speak on San Rafael history at 10 Thursday Thursday at the Lark Creek Inn in Larkspur. A luncheon will follow at the restaurant.

"GOBLINS GATHERING" a carnival sponsored by the Glenwood School Parent-Teacher Association, will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the school.

Activities will include tiny tot games, a creative arts booth and a hot dog lunch.

YWCA Sets Wine Tasting And Preview

A public wine tasting and preview of the Marin Young Women's Christian Association activities will be held Thursday from 3 to 6 p.m. at the YWCA Center, 1618 Mission Street, San Rafael.

The YWCA committee of management members, class instructors, and discussion leaders and staff will answer questions and give information about the special youth and preschool programs of the YWCA in Marin.

Among the activities offered are group discussions for mothers on parent-teen-agers relationships, parenting and the pre-school age child, single mothers concerns, an art experience workshop, a couples communication workshop and a Wednesday morning group for women who plan programs around the group's interests.

Excercise activities include yoga, belly dancing, baller or modern dance.

Also planned for the pre-holiday season are special lectures about the holidays and keeping costs down. An old fashioned Christmas series will include gift-making, holiday specialty foods, easy to make Christmas cookies and wrapping gifts with imaginative use of scraps.

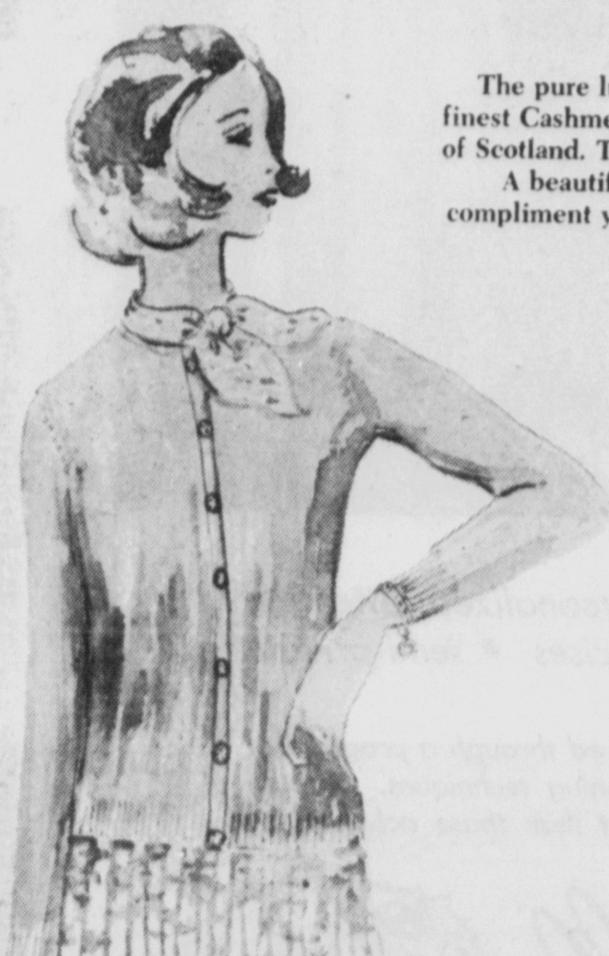

DAISEY HANSEN of Corte Madera is secretary treasurer of the International Domino Association and serves as a judge in domino tournaments. The next tournament to be sanctioned by the IDA will be sponsored by the Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary. It will be held Saturday at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley.

Truth Is Needed About Cosmetics

(The writer of this column, substituting for the vacationing Josephine Ripley, is a Congresswoman from Missouri and chairman of the House subcommittee on consumer affairs.)

By LEONOR K. SULLIVAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The rugged athletes who parade across our television screens in the commercial breaks between innings of the World Series or during timeouts in the football games, golf matches, hockey, basketball, or other sports events, would probably react with many indignation, if not with violence, to any implication that they are being paid to urge other men to buy and use cosmetics.

Yet that's exactly what most of them are doing in their sales pitches.

And the quicker all of the men of this country realize that they are among the largest users of cosmetics, the sooner we will be able to do something in Congress about the safety of numerous products nearly everyone uses in daily grooming.

MOST PEOPLE think of cosmetics only in terms of women's beauty aids — lipstick, mascara, eye liner, eye shadow, face powder, complexion tint, foundation cream and so on — and, of course, all of these products are cosmetics.

But so are the toothpastes, many mouthwashes, deodorants, shampoos, suntan preparations, talcum powders, hair grooming aids, and lots of other things used by just about everyone in the family. There are also the baby powder and baby oil used on infants and the men's shaving creams and pungent after-shave lotions and masculine colognes.

My problem is I just can't adjust to the baby. I get in moods where I don't want him and this drives me up the wall. Other times I love my son dearly.

My husband can't understand my attitude — we wanted a baby for so long, and he's the proudest father imaginable.

Could this be my conscience bothering me? And what can I do? — LOVE MY HUSBAND TOO MUCH TO HURT HIM

DEAR L:

Yes, this is probably your conscience bothering you, and it may take a session with a therapist before you come to terms with yourself.

Meanwhile, face the situation realistically:

The baby had one slim chance of being fathered by another man. Stop worrying about it and start looking for family resemblances between your husband and his son!

Ask yourself: "Would a confession relieve my guilt feelings, or would it only hurt my beloved husband?" "Is he the type who could take it?" and finally, "Would it create a rift between father and son?"

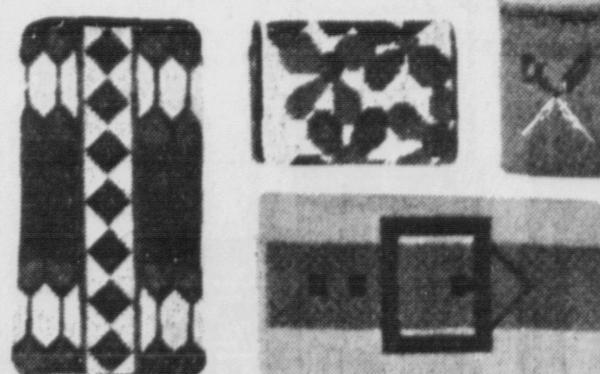

Then, concentrate on caring for your family and forgetting the past. You can! — H.

A Good Marriage Is Described
As A Long Lifetime Of Hands

DEAR HELEN:

Reading your "What is a Summer Love?" reminded me of the August I met my husband and started me reminiscing over our 11 years of marriage. I'm by no means a poet, and perhaps you'll find this too corny for your column but, since you inspired its writing, I want to share it with you:

What Is A Good Marriage?

A good marriage is a lifetime of hands.

It's a shaking hand sliding a shiny gold band onto the finger of another shaking hand.

It's an anxious hand tugging on a suddenly shy hand.

(It's hands touching in sudden tenderness, or swinging together down a crowded street, or fingers interlocking in the darkness of a theater. It's expressive hands: the playful pat on the fanny, the beckoning wave, the ruffled hair, the "Help me please" gesture... and sometimes but not often, the clenched fist.)

It's two ecstatic hands being grasped by tiny brand new hands.

It's hurrying hands setting dinner for hungry hands.

It's angry hands pushing away angrier hands.

It's an optimistic hand patting a discouraged hand.

It's a panicky hand clutching a calm hand.

It's a proud hand introducing an embarrassed hand.

It's joyous hands grabbing happy hands — and hands sharing sadness with a touch.

It's healthy hands holding sick hands.

It's a strong hand supporting a grief-stricken hand.

It's also tear-stained hands

SAN ANSELMO

All of these are legally designated as cosmetics, and as such are exempt under the law from any requirement that the manufacturer prove his product safe before it can be placed on the market.

THIS IS an exemption the cosmetics industry has successfully retained ever since the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of 1938 first brought cosmetics under federal regulation. Most food products must list every ingredient on the label; all over-the-counter drug items must do so.

An anomaly here is that a deodorant that has an anti-perspirant effect is considered a drug and must include on its label all of its ingredients; but the same brand marketed only as a deodorant and not as an anti-perspirant does not have to list ingredients. It is considered sufficient to sink it.

That was 35 years ago. But soap is still exempt from the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act!

There are other special-interest, anti-consumer exemptions in the cosmetics title of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938. The law gives the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) the power to remove from the market any cosmetic product it can legally prove is harmful or dangerous.

BUT FDA itself has to do the testing and locate the dangerous products — instead of having the manufacturer underwrite the cost of testing and prove in advance that the product is safe, as is now the case with all medicines and food products.

YET, EVEN with the power to outlaw cosmetic products it can prove are not safe, the FDA cannot touch any coal-tar hair dye, no matter how virulent it might be to individual users, as long as the label bears a prescribed warning to make a patch test.

The occasional case of female baldness resulting from a coal-tar hair dye is usually kept out of court, and thus out of the newspapers, by prompt payment of damages, and by the victim's reluctance to let the world know what has happened to her.

The food and Drug Administration seldom hears of cosmetic injuries. Out of an estimated 60,000 injuries a year from cosmetic products (a figure developed by the National Commission on Product Safety in 1970 from a study of insurance claims) the FDA receives only 300 or so complaints.

What the public does not know about cosmetics has been hurting innumerable Americans each year. It is time for the public to insist that action be taken by Congress to correct it.

Patricia Billy
lost 46 pounds 58 inches

"I stopped in at a Gloria Marshall Figure Salon. I told the counselor that I wanted to be a size 12 (after wearing a size 16. I would have been happy to lose 20 lbs., anything over that seemed an "impossible dream"). I have more than achieved my goal: 10 1/2" from my waist, and now wear a size 7 dress. I highly recommend Gloria Marshall Figure Control Salons to anyone who wants to look and feel better."

Why the Gloria Marshall Method? • personalized attention
• no pills or shots • no muscle building exercises • semi-private facilities • no disrobing • no starvation diets.

The Gloria Marshall method is pleasant! Your results are achieved through a program of nutritional guidance and individually designed firming and toning techniques. Because individual figure problems differ, your results may be different than those achieved by someone else.

FIRST IN FILM THEATER SERIES

Eugene O'Neil's "The Iceman Cometh" will be the first of eight films to be shown in the American Film Theater subscription series. The film with Fredric March and Robert Ryan will be shown at the Fairfax Theater next Monday and Tuesday in matinee and evening performances. The film — like the other seven a play brought to life motion picture — also will feature Lee Marvin, Jeff Bridges and Brad Dillman.

DRAMA REVIEW

ACT's Opener—A Brilliant 'Shrew'

By GERALD GENES

SAN FRANCISCO — The American Conservatory Theater convened its eighth season Saturday night with a magnificent production of William Shakespeare's, "The Taming of the Shrew," directed by William Ball.

The Geary Theater was packed and the opening night audience gave the performance an enthusiastic reception. "The Shrew" is the first of nine shows of the 1973-74 season. Tuesday night the company will offer the second production of the season — the prize-winning "Hot 1 Baltimore," by Lanford Wilson.

Ball's forte has always been the staging of his plays. His "Tiny Alice" of a few years back was brilliant. "The Taming of the Shrew" is even better. His actors move on stage like athletically trained ballet dancers. Their movements are humorously and harmoniously underscored and punctuated by a six or seven-piece percussion band.

These and a large cast of masked extras become the residents of Padua watching the play within a play unfold.

The cast is lusciously costumed by Robert Fletcher, in cream colored commedia dell'arte type costumes, with the principals' outfits slightly more colorful. The cumulative effect is easy on the eyes.

The set, designed by Ralph Funicello, at first glance looks like the deck of an old sailing ship. When the play begins and the stage is filled with 20 or 30 actors, you realize how serviceable and imaginative the set is. It is in keeping with the platforms used in the tradition of commedia dell'arte, the style in which the play is staged.

The actors use the stage like an exquisitely trained dance company — leaping, jumping and tumbling from one scene to the next.

Marc singer as Petruchio, the fortune hunting "gentleman" from Verona is magnificent to watch on stage. He has a commanding presence that grows but does not dominate the stage. Ball has carefully created an ensemble effect with the company that allows all the principals to have their moments.

Fredi Olster as the shrew, Kate, is bawdy and full of life, and is an excellent match for Petruchio's aggressive advances.

The suitors to Bianca (Claire Malis) and the servants to Lucentio (Stephen Schnetzer) and Petruchio have some of the comic highlights of the evening. Especially good are Ronald Bousman as Grumio, Raye Birk as Gremio, and James R. Winkler as Hortensio.

William Paterson, who has been with the company for six years, does what has become expected of him, an excellent job as Baptista Minola, the father of Kate and Bianca.

The remainder of the cast is all excellent.

In recent years, the American playgoer has been subjected to the theaters of alienation, cruelty, involvement and various and sundry experiments to break the bonds of tradition and explore new horizons. Ball has remained within the structures and has evolved a theater of joy and celebration. He has achieved the goal many have set out to accomplish — to totally involve his audience, emotionally as well as intellectually in what takes place on stage. His theatrical imagination and daring is unsurpassed by any in recent years. Ball has struck a new vein in his fertile imagination, and we are all the richer.

wanted the letter from Sid, she said:

"I've been fascinated with Marilyn Monroe for—well, I guess for all my life. Maybe it's because I was adopted, too. When I was little my mother used to take me to her movies. By now I've seen all of them at least 10 times.

"It's just recently people said I looked like her—it came up when I was a candidate for Miss Santa Monica of 1972 (she won). But I'm not trying to be a Monroe imitation. I'm Janet, not Marilyn."

Janet Raymond, 21, a Pepperdine University student who works as a hospital typist looks enough like the late actress to be her daughter.

She was outbid for a letter to Miss Monroe from a friend named Sid.

Burbank car importer Bill Sherny's $100 got the April 1962, letter from Little Rock, Ark., addressed to "Dearest Sunshine."

Miss Raymond paid $75 for three 1962-63 copies of Eros magazine with a Monroe photo spread.

One of the more expensive items was the contract which led to Miss Monroe's breakthrough in the movie "Asphalt Jungle." It went for $350.

New List Of Banned Toys Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has a new list of banned toys for shoppers to avoid during the holiday buying season, and it's more than half again as long as last year's.

With the pre-Christmas buying surge already in swing, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has compiled a list of over 1,500 banned products. Last year some 800-plus items were listed.

The items, although banned from sale, sometimes appear on store shelves anyway. They range from pumpkin and cat-shaped Halloween candy containers with dangerous nails to toy stuffed bears with sharp, barbed eyes. There are also toy poodles with sharp wires in the tail and child-sized xylophones with sharp edges.

Eighty per cent of the nation's toy sales take place in October, November and December, the commission said. The list is available at the commission's regional offices and Washington headquarters, at no cost.

The commission tests toys for three things — sharp points, sharp edges and small parts. One or a combination of those hazards, when exposed by tests, can result in the toy being banned.

A baby's rattle, for example, may be dropped by commission testers to determine if it will break open, spilling its contents and exposing them, as well as the sharp plastic edges, to the baby. In general the tests attempt to determine what will happen to toys when they are used—and abused—by children.

GERALD DURRELL
Saves endangered species

Naturalist Will Speak At College

Naturalist Gerald Durrell will present an illustrated lecture on his attempts to save endangered species Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. in the Marin Veterans auditorium at the Civic Center.

Durrell, whose topic will be "The Stationary Ark," is the author of twenty books on animal life and is the owner of a 32-acre zoo on the island of Jersey that protects and propagates rare species. He is the brother of novelist Lawrence Durrell.

This is Durrell's first lecture tour in the United States. His talk is sponsored by the Marin Conservation League, Marin Audubon Society and Save Animals from Extinction. Tickets are available at Memorial box office.

Chairman Of March

Mrs. Paul Sedway of San Rafael has been named chairman of the volunteer marchers for the Nov. 10-25 Marin County "Victory March" for the Arthritis Foundation.

Many of the hazards are repeat problems appearing under different brands and styles. The list is heavy on imports.

Asked why the list had grown so much during the past year, Al Castle of the commission's Bureau of Engineering Science credited increased emphasis from the agency.

Castle said the testing program has better facilities and inspectors are getting more familiar with the hazards involved.

If a banned toy is found on a store shelf by commission inspectors the store is asked to remove it and is subject to criminal penalties if it fails to act.

Russia Expected To Get Soybean Clearance Order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union may place new orders for American soybeans before the end of 1973, an Agriculture Department report predicted today.

The report by George Wana-maker, a specialist who recently toured major Soviet farming areas, said the Russians are harvesting a "good" sunflower crop this year. But production is likely to fall about 1 million tons short of meeting Soviet needs for vegetable oil and protein meal for livestock feeding, he added.

"While purchase plans are never announced, substantial quantities of soybeans — probably from the United States — appear to be needed," Wana-maker said.

The official estimated that Russia's minimum needs could be covered by a purchase of 650,000 tons of U.S. soybeans, but he noted the "import deficit" could be even bigger if Soviet officials want to maintain their expanding livestock production goals.

Farias Trial
For Murder
Is Delayed

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The murder trial of Eloy Farias, former Sonoma State College baseball star, has been delayed pending change of venue arguments in Sonoma County Superior Court.

Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. agreed Friday to delay the trial from tomorrow until Nov. 6 to give defense attorney Robert Y. Bell time to argue for a change of trial location.

Farias, 22, of Geyserville, is accused of the March 30 murders of Debra Lee Henthorn, 19, and her mother, Nancy Lee Henthorn, 42, at their Geyserville home. Police said the shootings followed a family argument when Miss Henthorn rejected a proposal of marriage from Farias.

Bell told Murphy he expects to show general discrimination against Chicano in Sonoma County and that Farias could not get a fair trial in Santa Rosa.

Arguments on the change of venue were set for tomorrow at 10 a.m.

One San Quentin inmate escaped from the family visiting area and another was stabbed yesterday in unrelated incidents, according to prison authorities.

Lex Lowe, 25, of Los Angeles, was reported missing from the minimum-security visiting area at 8:10 a.m. after staying overnight in the family quarters with relatives including an aunt, uncle and two children.

Charles Johnson, 29, of San Francisco, was stabbed at 4:55 p.m. in the fifth tier of D Section, while guards were locking up inmates after supper.

Johnson walked up to guards and told them he'd been stabbed. Prison hospital spokesmen said he was in good condition today with three stab wounds in the back and one in the left arm.

Lowe's escape from the family visiting area was the second in a week. Franklin C. Nabayan, 34, from San Diego, fled Oct. 14, and has not been recaptured.

(Fourth of a series of stories on the eight candidates for a vacancy on the Marin Community College District board.)

Francis P. McGowan, financial planner and stockbroker, wants to see Marin's community colleges remain responsive to the needs of the community so he is seeking election to the Marin Community College District board.

McGowan is one of eight candidates for a vacancy created when Elizabeth M. Deedy resigned her seat to accept a state position. The vacancy will be filled in the Nov. 6 election.

McGowan, holder of a doctor's degree in economics from New York University, favors a balance between vocational and academic courses. He advocates adding vocational programs in fields favored by the public but indicated no personal desire to add particular courses.

The 39-year-old McGowan believes continued building at Indian Valley Colleges should be financed through bond issues.

and faculty participation in a "team approach" to policy making by the board. The views of both groups can be aired through existing elements like the committee system and faculty senate or can be brought to the board by individuals, according to McGowan.

Adult education is "vital to the needs of the community," McGowan said, and need not detract from other educational efforts. He supports adding programs like the new senior citizens program at the College of Marin because they "meet specific needs."

McGowan said district organization should include presidents at both the Novato and Kentfield campuses and a district superintendent to watch over district-wide operations.

He said he would favor continued budgetary increases to expand educational programs as long as they meet the needs of the community.

McGowan favors combining ethnic studies programs in one department.

McGowan is former treasurer of the Sleepy Hollow parent-teacher association, president of the Association of Financial Planners in San Francisco and a director of the Estate Planning Council of Marin.

He lives with his wife, Helga, at 899 Butterfield Road in San Anselmo. The couple has two daughters.

FLIGHT OF FANCY

Two gulls, the male resplendent in white, are haloed in light as they court against a background of cloud. Bruce Lehman of the Independent-Journal engraving department captured their flight on film yesterday during a Marine Corps Reserve training exercise.

On and around Angel Island. (See photos, page 12.) The birds were wheeling above his landing craft, lured by bread thrown by the men aboard, glad, just as in war, of the distraction from the less glamorous business at hand.

Two Arrested In Swindle Eyed As Marin Suspects

Two Los Angeles women arrested by San Francisco police Friday after a "pigeon drop" scheme backfired may be the swindlers that bilked an elderly San Rafael woman of $2,400 Wednesday.

The two women were arrested after a scheme to bilk a San Francisco woman of $3,500 in a San Francisco department store backfired when the victim became suspicious.

Embezzler
Suspect's Body Found

I-J Special Report
MIAMI, Fla. — A San Francisco embezzler, accomplice of a San Anselmo man and two others sentenced Friday in U.S. District Court, killed himself here Saturday.

The body of 35-year-old Jorge Rivas was found dead of a bullet wound in the chest in a rented car in a beachfront parking lot. He left a suicide note. Rivas, who was to have appeared in the San Francisco Court for sentencing Friday, had been living with his wife and two children in an expensive apartment in Miami since May.

George Thomas McIntosh, 32 of San Anselmo, a former trust officer of the Bank of California, was sentenced by Judge Oliver J. Carter to six months in prison for his part in the embezzlement of $107,590 from the bank. A similar sentence was meted out to Jerry Nomura of Berkeley, a 40-year-old stockbroker. A fourth party to the embezzlement, Wallace J. Eisinger, 43, a Los Angeles public relations man, was fined $2,500.

The four men, using trust accounts in the bank and three false accounts they set up transferred funds and played the stock market.

Students Slate Fall Festival

A fall festival with booths, food, games, a haunted house and pumpkin carving will be presented Oct. 29 by the students of the Katharine Branson and Mount Tamalpais schools, on their campus in Ross.

Booths will open at 3 p.m. with the Great Pumpkin carving contest at 5:45 p.m., dinner at 6 p.m. and entertainment by the schools' mime troupe and the film "The 39 Steps" will begin at 7 p.m.

The festival is held to raise money for the operating costs of the schools' organization and clubs and to continue support of two foster children in Guatemala and Pusan, Korea.

Burglars Hit
School Canteen

The Sir Francis Drake High School canteen was burglarized twice over the weekend by thieves who took ice cream and candy, San Anselmo police said today.

A thief on Saturday kicked in a service window and stole about $25 worth of ice cream, candy and soda from the facility, police said.

A thief yesterday apparently entered the canteen through the same window and stole more ice cream and candy, police said.

Task Force Sets Candidates' Night

The Tamalpais Task Force will hold a candidates' night following its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club for persons running for seats on the board of the Tamalpais Community Services District.

Curry Eckelhoff of the task force said that candidates probably would begin speaking at 9 p.m.

San Rafael
High Sets Homecoming

San Rafael High School's 1973 homecoming activities will be marked by a "spirit week" this week, according to school publicist Joanie Flynn.

Festivities begin at noon tomorrow and continue Wednesday, which has been dubbed "crazy dress day," with lunch hour skateboard and tricycle races, she said.

Students will again wear costumes on Thursday, or "halloween day," she said.

Homecoming events will be highlighted by selection of a homecoming queen on Friday, and the homecoming game with Sir Francis Drake High School at 8 p.m. The game will be preceded by a parade down Fourth Street to San Rafael High School at 6:45 p.m., she said.

Bettinger Coffees

Coffees for Dr. John C. Bettinger, candidate for the Ross School District board, have been scheduled for 10 a.m., Tuesday and Thursday, at the home of Garrett Scales, 2 Berry Lane; at 8 p.m., Tuesday and Friday, at the home of Denman McNear, 44 Makin Grade; at 10 a.m., Oct. 30, at the home of J.W. Aufrecht, 120 Lagunitas Road; at 10 a.m., Nov. 1, at the home of Jefferson Graves on Bridge Road and at 10:30 a.m., Nov. 2, at the home of Robert Herrick on Ames Avenue. All live in Ross.

Art Exhibit

A student-faculty art exhibit is on display through Nov. 17 at Dominican College. Student work is displayed in San Marco Gallery and faculty work in the archbishop Alemany library. Both are open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Today is Monday, Oct. 22, the 25th day of 1973 with 70 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Hungarian composer Franz Liszt was born Oct. 22, 1811.

On this day in history:

In 1836, Gen. Sam Houston was sworn in as the first president of the Republic of Texas.

In 1883, the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City celebrated its grand opening with a performance of "Faust."

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy announced an arms blockade of Cuba after Soviet missiles were discovered on the Communist island.

In 1968, the three Apollo 7 astronauts splashed down after an 11-day earth orbital flight.

A thought for the day: German poet Rainer Maria Rilke said, "A good marriage is that in which each appoints the other guardian of his solitude."

Saturday's Answer

The economic impact of an indefinite continuation of the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections will be considered at a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the planning commission chambers at Civic Center.

The connection ban is expected to continue if Measure E, the district's $7.5 million bond issue for new water supply, fails to pass Nov. 6.

The board will also hold a second hearing on an environmental impact report on the proposed water supply project.

Earlier, directors will meet at 1:30 p.m. to consider a contract with the Sonoma County Water Agency to obtain water through the Russian River pipeline, when and if it is built.

NOTICE OF TERMS AND CONDITIONS FOR LEASE OF SAN ANSELMO SCHOOL

1. This property shall be used by the Lessee only for office and related use by a non-profit organization established for the benefit of the community.

2. Lessee shall, together with its bid, submit a definite proposal indicating the specific uses to which the property will be put and the means whereby it proposes to meet with the requirement that the property be used for said purposes.

3. Lessee shall provide public liability insurance coverage indemnifying the school district against suits or losses resulting from activities conducted by the user while occupying this building. Amounts of coverage shall be Bodily Injury Liability $100,000 each person and $300,000 single limit. Lessor shall be named as additional insured. Lessee shall indemnify and hold Lessor harmless from any liability for personal injury or property damage arising out of Lessee's use of the premises. Lessor shall continue to carry fire and extended coverage insurance on the premises; however, Lessee shall pay any increased cost of premiums caused by Lessee's use.

4. Rent shall be payable monthly on the first of each month.

5. Lessee shall provide all custodial service, including supplies, for said property. Lessor shall pay all utilities except telephone.

6. Lessee shall pay all costs of normal upkeep on the interior of the building and, upon the termination of this Lease, shall return the building to the District in the same condition, normal wear and tear excepted.

The Lessor shall have no obligation to pay for interior repairs or upkeep on the premises, including but not limited to such items as plumbing.

7. Any remodeling, interior painting, new construction, or reconstruction of the premises shall be done at the sole expense of the Lessee and only after the plans

Public Notice

RESOLUTION NO. 15.38.020 OF THE SAN ANSELMO SCHOOL DISTRICT RE INTENTION TO LEASE REAL PROPERTY AND CALLING FOR SEALED BIDS.

WHEREAS, the San Anselmo School District is the owner of certain real property hereinafter described, which property is not needed for school purposes by said District; and

WHEREAS, it appears to be the best interest of said school district that said property be leased to the highest bidder, pursuant to Sections 16061, et seq., of the Education Code of the State of California;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY FOUND, DETERMINED AND ORDERED;

1. The property hereinabove described, owned by the San Anselmo School District, is not needed for school purposes within the time limit hereinabove set forth.

2. It is the intention of this Board to lease said property to the highest bidder according to the terms and conditions hereinabove set forth.

3. The use of the leased premises shall be limited to office and related use by a non-profit organization established for the benefit of the community.

4. That said property is situated in the County of Marin, State of California, and is particularly described and depicted on EXHIBIT "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein.

5. The minimum acceptable bid shall be $17 per square foot. Credit against the lease price may be granted for improvements made by the Lessee.

6. No less than one (1) vacant classroom shall be leased to any Lessee.

7. The lease of said property shall be subject to the terms and conditions set forth in EXHIBIT "B" attached hereto and incorporated herein.

8. At 8:30 o'clock P.M., on October 25, 1973, at the regular meeting place of this Board, this Board shall hold a public meeting at which time sealed proposals to lease said property shall be received and considered. Bidders shall conform in all respects in their proposed use with the conditions set forth in EXHIBIT "B".

9. Sealed Proposals shall be filed with George H. Gross, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Room 315, Marin County Civic Center, San Rafael, California, until 2:00 pm, November 5, 1973.

10. Lessor shall provide competent supervision for all activities conducted on the premises.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Comeback Hopes Of Benrus Good

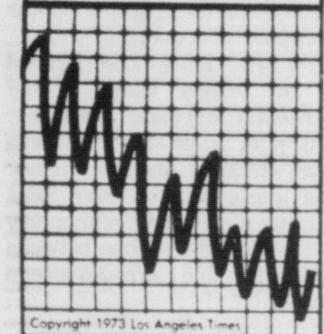

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1972 I bought 200 shares of Benrus Corp. (ASE) at $8 a share. Is there any hope that the stock will recover? — P.C.

A. A good surge in earnings for the year ending Jan. 31, 1974, is probable. In the first six months Benrus tripled earnings, reporting 27 cents a share, on a 2 per cent gain in sales. The company's new "Techniquartz" quartz crystal timepieces have been big sellers since their introduction 16 months ago. A new digital readout quartz timing device is also in the works. Watches accounted for 45 per cent of sales last year, jewelry 31 per cent and precision components and electronic power supplies 24 per cent. With sales now above the break-even level and all divisions contributing to profits, the company's more aggressive marketing posture could move earnings ahead significantly.

SMART CHART

by Stansbury

"I wonder what the stock market will turn into after reincarnation."

The stock is an interesting speculative turnaround candidate and should be held for recovery.

Q. Please advise me on General American Oil Co. of Texas (NYSE). The stock has been as high as $80 and recently below $28. I have 500 shares and would like your opinion on whether to hold or sell. — E.R.

A. General American Oil has paid, in addition to cash dividends, 3 per cent in stock annually since 1966. Thus, if your 500 shares were purchased in 1969, when the stock reached its all-time high, you should hold 561 shares at the present time. Recovery from the low this year has been excellent, with GAO rebounding 46 per cent. Although earnings for the year ended June 30, 1973, were off, cash flow was up. A 27 cents a share write-off was taken in the final quarter, reflecting the close down of melamine operations.

Exploration activity has been stepped up with encouraging results particularly the offshore Louisiana and Adriatic areas. As a result, reserves, which for GAO have been eroding, may be in for a substantial boost. For the time being the shares are worth holding.

Auto Services

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Eaton Corp. will enter the automobile services center field with a division headquartered in St. Louis. Chairman E. M. de Windt told a meeting of local security analysts. About $12 million will be invested in the centers in the next two years.

Car Theft No Cause For Celebrating

The great ripoff. Or how I lost a car while all Oakland was celebrating.

While I was busy scribbling notes about the way the Oakland A's fans were ripping up the turf and taking everything out of the Oakland Coliseum which wasn't bolted down, the forces of evil were staring down at me.

I was trying to join in the celebration under the coliseum in the makeshift hospitality room, with the drinks on Charlie Finley, when the first evil deed hit. Some souvenir hunter found my briefcase too inviting and walked off with it, notebook full of scribblings and all. Any chance I had of writing the Great American Novel on the World Series went with my notebook and box scores.

And then when I went outside, empty handed, I discovered I didn't even have a car. Why someone would want to steal a 1967 Volkswagen, with all those expensive cars to choose from is beyond me. It had to be hot-wired, since I still had the ignition key in my pocket.

There I was, in the empty Oakland Coliseum parking lot, no box score and no car. Fortunately I found fellow Novataan Gary Hughes and after a report to the Oakland police I was able to get a ride home. It would have been a heck of a walk.

IT WAS A GRAND celebration, anyway, with most of the shouting being done by the players' wives. They must have been song girls in their high school days since they enjoyed group singing so much. "California, Here I Come," was their favorite little tune. Their eyes were sparkling, and there were no doubts as to why. To the players, winning might be everything, but to the little woman, the money ain't so bad. Many of those wives already had part of that World Series bonus money spent.

A's coach Irv Noren did his celebrating very quietly, sitting there savoring a good cigar, leaving the shouting for the others. He had been paid the highest compliment possible by departing manager Dick Williams just a couple of hours earlier. Williams, during his official press conference to announce he was quitting the A's, said if it were up to him to pick a successor it would be Noren.

No one had told Noren this and when I discussed the possibility of his managing the two-year world champs he said he would welcome the chance with open arms. And managing a team owned by Charles O. Finley is no easy thing. Just ask Dick Williams, although he said Finley was not the reason for his quitting.

WILLIAMS SAID he was quitting because he wanted to be able to spend more time with his wife and two children, an 8-year old and a high school senior. His home is in Florida and he wants to be closer to his home. New York is close enough, and any minute now the announcement will be coming out of New York that Williams is the new manager of the Yankees.

He told the newsmen yesterday that he hadn't yet talked to the Yankee people but would welcome the chance to manage the Yankees. Of course he hadn't yet talked to them. That would be tampering, since he was still under contract with Finley, and no one wants to accuse the Yanks of tampering. But now that he has announced his quitting the A's, he's fair game.

While he was telling everybody how Finley was such a nice boss and in no way was the negative factor which caused him to quit the A's, everybody was duly recording the words on notepads. They were not believing him, but they were writing it down. Williams is a very good politician and he doesn't want to make enemies, especially among people who have as much baseball influence as Finley. Williams handled the situation very well.

FINLEY GOT nearly as much ink as the players during this World Series because of his weird methods of running a ball club, but Williams got the last headline, if not the last laugh.

And I hope the guy who stole my car was at least an A's fan. I thank God for small favors.

SNEED, NOT NICKLAUSKaiser Triumph By Lone Ohio Golfer

NAPA (UPI) — Maybe it was a good thing Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf decided to skip this year's Kaiser International Open.

The Ohio State University graduates might have had difficulty with a fellow Buck-eye, Ed Sneed — that's Sneed, not to be confused with Sam or J.C. Sneed.

The 29-year-old Sneed gave Ohio State another Professional Golfers Association winner yesterday when he defeated John Schlee on the first extra hole to win his first tour championship, the $150,000 Kaiser International Open.

Both Sneed and the gray-haired Schlee toured the rain-soaked 6,819-yard north course at Silverado Country Club in par 72s to send the tournament into its third playoff in seven years.

Sneed got on the green in two on the extra hole but Schlee, who earlier this year won the Hawaiian Open for his first

A's Survive Troubles, Win Series

By VITO STELLINO

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's didn't win the World Series as much as they survived it.

They survived death threats on their Most Valuable Player, they survived their unpredictable owner, they survived a manager who walked out as soon as the final out was made and they even survived the Mets' magic mystique.

Like a terrible swift sword, the Athletics struck with dramatic suddenness in the third inning yesterday to make the seventh game of the World Series an anti-climactic affair.

Two-run homers by Bert Campaneris, who isn't paid to hit homers, and Reggie Jackson, who is, gave the Oakland A's a 5-2 decision over the New York Mets in the final game of baseball's October Festival.

The A's evened the series Saturday with a 3-1 win.

The victory means the A's are the first non-New York

Yankee team since the 1929-30 Philadelphia A's to win the World Series for two straight years.

To give you an idea, Milwaukee couldn't do it in 199 with a 3-1 lead, St. Louis couldn't do it in 1968 with a 3-1 lead and Baltimore couldn't do it in 1971 with a 2-0 lead. But the A's did to take their place as one of the great teams in baseball history.

Because of all the turmoil surrounding the club, though, the A's aren't really appreciated as a baseball team.

"I don't think anybody knows how good a club we could be," said captain Sal Bando.

Bud Harrelson, the Mets' shortstop, said, "you've got to respect them because they're professionals who won it for themselves despite all the bull they had to go through. I don't like Mr. (Charles) Finley because he doesn't treat his players well. But they're pros and they play for themselves."

Dick Williams, the Oakland manager who finally tired of hassling with Finley, officially announced he's quitting as manager 20 minutes after the game ended. It was an open secret because Williams had told the players last Tuesday night.

Williams is expected to take the Yankee job — following the footsteps of the late Johnny Keane who did the same thing after winning with St. Louis in 1964 — and most of his players would like to come with him.

Jackson, who revealed he had received death threats in late September but had continued to play, received the auto given to the MVP for his nine hits and six RBIs.

As Jackson drank the victory champagne, he said, "what awful cheap stuff." He added, "but that figures on this club."

But even though Finley runs

FAHEY'S FLING — Drake High School quarterback Terry Fahey (13) unleashed this pass Saturday under pressure from Marin Catholic defenders Herb Moran (88) and Jim Iavarone (63), while Drake's George Peder-

Redwood Rallies For Football Win

By TOM THOMPSON

Redwood High School just keeps winning its football games in the fourth quarter.

With just seconds left in the Giants' Marin County Athletic League encounter with San Marin, Ed Andersen caught a 50-yard scoring pass from quarterback John Troppmann, to give Redwood an electrifying 26-22 victory.

Less than a minute before Andersen's touchdown reception, it looked like San Marin had won the game on Wayne Roche's 13 yard pass to Craig Leaf, making the score 22-19.

The touchdown came after a Mark Petrucci fumble recovery on the Redwood 40 yard line and was helped along by a 47 yard Greg Pater catch of a Mark Moore pass.

Mark Richter, who had an outstanding day, rushing for 162 yard on 19 carries, took the ensuing San Marin kickoff and ran it 64 yards to San Marin's 27-yard line. A Roger Brewster tackle saved Redwood from scoring at that point. Five plays later, however, Redwood from scoring at that point. Five plays later, however, Redwood won the game.

"The players just never let down," said coach Phil Roark after his team had won its fourth straight game in the final quarter. "They remain poised and never give up."

Brodie Is Modest After 49ers' Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For a long while, it looked like the San Francisco 49ers and New Orleans Saints might play a scoreless tie.

The teams were deadlocked 0-0 for the first 25 minutes yesterday until old pro John Brodie took over a sluggish 49er offense operated erratically by Steve Spurrier who was booted by the crowd of 52,881. Teaming with former Saint Danny Abramowicz, Brodie immediately decimated the New Orleans secondary while leading the 49ers to a 40-0 rout.

The 38-year-old Brodie com-

Redwood (5-1 overall) took over sole possession of first place in the MCAL football standings with a 3-0 record, while San Marin stayed in the cellar at 0-3 (3-3 overall).

The game, at Redwood's new "home" field at Tamalpais High, was played without the benefit of a scoreboard, due to a power blackout in the Mill Valley area. About 700 frantic fans watched.

Roche and Troppmann had fine days, rushing for 98 and 81 yards respectively and rushing and passing for two touchdowns each.

Plenty of fireworks led up to the final desperate moment. Redwood opened the scoring on the game's second play when Troppmann dashed 61 yards around right end. San Marin wasn't let down, however, scoring on the next series on a 67-yard drive on eight plays, with Roche rushing in the final three.

The Giants took a 13-7 half-time lead on another big play on the right side when Richter scored his first of two touchdowns, running 63 yards.

Mustang Tim Lessley put his team ahead on the second half opening kick-off by running it back 73 yards. San Marin carried the 14-13 lead into the final quarter, but Redwood started the period with Richter's other T.D. on a three-yard rush, to make the score 19-14.

Rancho Blanks Piner Gridders

By PAUL DWORIN

Brad Harris intercepted four passes Saturday to lead Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park to a 14-0 defense-triggered victory over visiting Sonoma County league football rival Piner High School of Santa Rosa.

The win vaulted the Cougars into the sole leadership of the SCL race with a 3-0 mark. Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa is one half of a game behind at 2-0, and Piner dropped a full game back at 2-1.

In other prep grid action Saturday, St. Vincent of Petaluma edged host Point Arena, 21-20, in a North Central League II game. visiting Tomales blasted NCL II foe Upper Lake, 34-0, and Casa Grande of Petaluma scored a 28-25 non-league comeback triumph over host Menlo.

HOME FIELD

Broncos Have No Advantage

DENVER (UPI) — The old thing about a home field advantage doesn't exist when the Denver Broncos host the Oakland Raiders.

Oakland, which owns a 20-5-1 edge in the series with Denver, has beaten the Broncos in Denver each of the last 10 years.

Tonight at 6 o'clock, however, Bronco coach John Ralston says his troops are ready to end the streak as Denver makes its first appearance in the Monday night television game with the Raiders in what is a vital battle in the American Football Conference West.

Oakland is in second place in the West with a 3-2 record with Denver a step back at 2-3. Kansas City, a 14-6 victim of Cincinnati, leads the division with a 3-2-1 record.

Ralston feels pretty good about the Broncos, who trailed 20-10 at halftime last week and wound up with a 48-20 win over the Houston Oilers. In that game, Charley Johnson surpassed the 20,000 yard career passing mark and became the first quarterback this year to throw four touchdown passes.

Floyd Little also had his best day of the season with 123 yards rushing.

Oakland presents the best rush defense in the NFL and the Raiders, who allowed San Diego only 90 yards in all during last week's 27-17 win, will give a big test to the Denver offense that averaged 353.8 yards a game.

Oakland placekicker-quarterback George Blanda needs only one field goal for his 300th career boot and the matchup will mark his 188th straight game. Raider center Jim Otto will also be starting his 188th straight as Blanda and Otto both the Green Bay's Forrest Gregg's record for consecutive appearances.

Marin Bantams In First Hockey Win

Ken Conroy scored twice and goalie Lou Peterman shut out Eastside yesterday as the Bantams became the first Marin Amateur Hockey Club team to win a game in the four-week Northern California Amateur Hockey League season with a 2-0 victory.

The Bantams, also playing at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera, lost to Eastside, 4-2. The mites and squirts lost to Belmont, 8-0 and 10-0, respectively.

Redwood Frosh Win

Jim Connor threw touchdown passes of 37 and 29 yards to Doug Baird, the latter with 52 seconds left in the game, to give the Redwood High School freshman football team (2-1 overall) a 20-14 victory over Terra Linda (1-2) in its Marin County Athletic League opener Saturday at Terra Linda.

'Schoolyard Tricks' Trigger Two NFL Victories

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Minnesota Vikings and the Cincinnati Bengals are obviously not too bad at "schoolyard tricks" in this age of conservative game plans.

With most pro coaches content in taking as few risks as possible, both the Vikings and the Bengals, the latter under the tutelage of Paul Brown, used the old-fashioned razzledazzle play of another era yesterday day to catch their opponents flatfooted and record victories in National Football League competition.

The Bengals used a double reverse to bewilder Kansas City defenders as Cincinnati scored a 14-6 victory over the mistake-riddled Kansas City Chiefs.

Wide receiver John Gilliam scored two touchdowns, catching the Eagles' defense out of position both times, to help the Vikings down Philadelphia and stay unbeaten in the National Football Conference Central Division.

Trailing 3-0 in the second quarter, the Bengals pulled off a double reverse with quarterback Ken Anderson winding up with the ball. He then fired a 30-yard pass to Bob Trumpy for a touchdown and a 7-3 lead which Cincinnati never gave up.

Gilliam, who also set up two touchdowns with key catches of Fran Tarkenton passes, sent the Vikings ahead early with a 44-yard touchdown on a double reverse and they kept the lead the rest of the way.

The Los Angeles Rams joined the Vikings as the only other undefeated team in the NFL with a 27-4 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Rams' quarterback John Hadl threw a 46-yard touch-

Tonight at 6 o'clock Oakland is at Denver.

Dallas' defense set up three touchdowns with a fumble recovery by Larry Cole, an interception by Lee Roy Jordan and a blocked punt by Billy Joe DuPree and D.D. Lewis' score with another punt blocked by DuPree.

Charley Taylor caught seven passes for 153 yards and a touchdown as the Washington Redskins avenged their loss earlier this season to St. Louis and beat the Cardinals.

Quarterback Marty Domres, starting his first game of the season to give Baltimore some offensive spark, scored one touchdown and passed 66 yards to Glenn Doughty for another to lead the Colts over the sagging Detroit Lions.

Substitute quarterback Terry Hanratty passed 16 yards to Ron Shanklin for a fourth-quarter touchdown and Roy Gerela tied his own club record with four field goals as the Pittsburgh Steelers overcame a series of mistakes to defeat the Jets.

Quarterback Mike Phipps ran for two touchdowns and passed for two others as Cleveland clobbered Houston and new head coach Sid Gillman for the Oilers' 17th straight defeat.

First half pass interceptions and long returns by Tom Hayes and Clarence Ellis set up touchdowns and sparked the Atlanta Falcons past the San Diego Chargers.

Jim Plunkett sneaked in for a touchdown from five yards out with a minute and 56 seconds left to pull out New England's victory over Chicago.
